The French commander said he had notified the Berlin radio station management Nov. 26 that the demolition would take place today in order to allow the management time to arrange new installations in another sector. He said the demolition took place without incident.

Will Infroduce New Tax Forms

OTTAWA, Dec. 16 — (CP)— The revenue department today introduced Canadians to a new and simplified short income-tax form which it said will be used by 3,000,000 of the 3,500,000 indi-vidual taxpayers who will file 1948 tax returns.

Revenue Minister McCann said the new form is a pocket-size folder and will be known as the "TI short form."

The new form also changes the basis of reporting taxes. While up to now the size of income has governed the form to be used, this year the source of income is the governing factor.

Thus, all individuals whos earned income is derived solely from salaries, wages or pensions and whose investment income does not exceed $1,800 a year may use the short form. The department estimates this includes 86 per cent of all taxpayers.

The short form is a condensation of the old foolscape size, four-page form with the red border (T1 Special), the six-page foolscap size white form (T1 General) and the short form introduced last year (T4-T1 Employees). ties, also will suffer."

Does Peterborough Need A City Manager?

Before the municipal elections we suggested in these columns that the time had come for Peterborough to give some thought to the appointment of a city manager. The work of the mayor and aldermen, we said, had grown to a point where it demanded more time than many of our best citizens were able to give to it; in the case of young aldermen, in particular, private business must be sacrificed to city business, and this means a considerable sacrifice of professional and financial advancement. In short, it costs so much in time and money to take part in our municipal government that only men well established in life, or of private means, or keenly interested in a political career (local, provincial or federal) can be persuaded to shoulder the burden. We suggested that the appointment of a city manager would ease the executive duties of the mayor and aldermen, leaving them free to lay down policies without involving themselves in a mass of time-taking details.

There are disadvantages in the city manager system, of course. A great deal of executive power is concentrated in the hands of one man, and as he is tion of a city manager must be forceful without being dictatorial, and his integrity must be beyond question. A man fit to hold such a job is bound to be a man of strong opinions, but he must be tactful enough to realize that final authority lies with the Council.

The position of a city manager, in test, is comparable with that of the general manager of a company. His task is the executive one, and many minor decisions must be left with him. His advice must be heeded, but not always followed. The president of the company which he serves is the Mayor, and the board of directors is the Council: the shareholders are the citizens. Like a general manager, he keeps his eye on all expenses of all departments, and he knows from week to week how those expenses compare with the estimates presented to the Council in the spring. Like a company manager, he is the watchdog of the treasury, and it is his job to keep expenses in check. It is a big job, it demands an able man, and it should carry with it a substantial

It is sometimes said that the appointment of a city manager decreases interest in municipal politics, but we do not see that this need be so. As long as the Council is the policy-making body, and as long as the Mayor is the boss, city politics should be in a healthy state. What the city manager can do is to take care of the mass of details which now afflict the aldermen and committee heads, and direct the city's business efficiently from a single well-organized office. We feel that Peterborough has now reached a size where such an official is necessary. Already the Board of Education has concentrated its executive power in a single official, and so far as we can judge at present the plan is working admirably. Has the time come for the Council to consider a similar appoint-

U.N. Still Important

The 1948 Assembly of United Nations ended its eight-week Paris session quietly last Sunday. The delegates left Paris as disappointed and sorry as the nations whom they represented. People generally were little surprised that little was accomplished. Certainly peace was not saved this year by U.N. Nevertheless, while U.N. exists, it is a means of avoiding a third world war—"the only means" said General McNaughton, Canada's permanent delegate, on his return to Ottawa this week.

A vast change has come over the outlook of U.N. and the popular view of it since the first session of the Assembly in 1946. That opened with much enthusiasm and optimism and countries sent their most distinguished and able representatives. Though it was chiefly an organization session, the schism between eastern and western countries was woefully apparent. U.N. was active last year, but the veto and state of the world frustrated its actions. It concerned itself about Greece but civil war continued there. It had a Korean Commission, but Korea continued to suffer from divided rule and occupation. While peace terms were planned for Germany, Germany split as wincly as the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. The partition of Palestine was approved, but in the next twelve months partition became a battle issue, not a U.N. decision.

What was accomplished this year at U.N.'s third Assembly? A resolution was adopted on "international control of atomic energy, but the Russian group of countries neither approved nor will co-operate. However, the U.N. Commission on Atomic Energy has been revived. It made provisions with regard to Korea, but the Soviet Ukraine has boycotted the Korean Commission, and Canada, also a former member, asked to be relieved from serving on it. A Declaration of Human Rights was adopted, but Canada abstained from voting on it, the Federal Government having, as our representative said, no intention of encroaching on the separate provinces' civil jurisdiction. Genocide (extermination of races by mass slaughter) was outlawed.

The record of achievement is not imposing, nevertheless there are kernels from which good and great things may grow. The failure of U.N. must not be judged too harshly, for if we do, we are condemning ourselves, the people of the 58 nations who make up U.N. The problems of U.N. are as complex and varied as the problems of humanity. U.N. is but three years old, and too much must not be expected too soon. We can rightly be grieved that U.N. is as puny as it now is, but we must not despair of it, for it is our greatest hope of achieving peace in this century.

Christmas Is Not Chiefly For Children

How often, these days we hear some-

After all, Christme L Gamuren's season, isn't it?" To this suggestion we say No, with great firmness. Of course children enjoy Christmas, and their enjoyment is one of the things that makes the holiday the finest in the year, but the pleasure which children derive from presents and rich food is not the be-all and end-all of Christmas. The day is a great holy-day-the celebration of the birth of Our Lord-and it is this which makes it mobile; and it is in this celebration that adults should play their full part. Children are incapable of understanding the full meaning of Christmas, and those who would reduce Christmas to the level of a children's holiday must be irreligious, or themselves possessed of the minds of children.

The number of times that Christmas is brought down to the childish level is measure of the decay of religion in our time. How many people are there today who genuinely rejoice in the holidays which are part of the fabric of Christianity, and which were instituted in order that we might show our faith plainly? How many people are there who would have a fit if they were told at they were not Christ celebrate their Saviour's birth in terms of eating, drinking, and exchanging neckties and pocket handkerchiefs? How many are there who allow the season to go by without once bringing a prayer or a carol to their lips? There are thousands of people in these categories, and yet they are the very ones who prate about Christmas as "the children's holiday".

Christmas is not a children's holiday. Its spirit and purpose are capable of absorbing all that adult men and women have to give. It is a day when God's love for Man is symbolized by gifts, and when God's mercy toward Man is symbolized by a special tenderness toward children. But Christmas as a children's festival—what an absurd and irreligious notion!

NOTES AND COMMENT

A sociologist says that a majority of murder victims are killed in their own homes. Where they are best known.

A perfume advertisement recommends "a fragrance that says frankly, 'Follow Me'". Is there any way of switching this quickly to one which says "You've gone far enough"?

A health column says: "The average person spends one-fourteenth of his time eating". And at least one-seventh of it wishing he had not eaten so much.

The Toronto Telegram demands: "Are Canadians stuffed shirts?" We are not prepared to give a direct answer, but we will go so far as to say that the season approaches when many a Canadian will be stuffed, and a few may even be boiled.

From The Critic's Notebook

NO PLACE TO HIDE by David Bradley (McClelland and Stewart. The author is an American medical doctor who spent four months before, during and after the Bikini atomic bomb tests observing the effect of unseen radiation on living tissue and human beings. It is in diary form—his log of events attendant upon the above-water explosion on July 1st, 1946 and the under-water explosion on July 25th. He writes plainly and in layman's language.

Dr. Bradley has this to say of "Operation Crossroads" at Bikini: "The greatest failure of all in these tests has been in apprehending their sociological implications... It is not the security of a political system but the survival of the race which is at stake in the indiscriminate use of atomic energy for political coercion". He says that there is (1) no real defense against atomic weapons (2) no satisfactory countermeasures and methods of decontamination (3) no satisfactory medical or sanitary safeguards for the people of atomized areas (4) the devastating influence of the Bomb may affect the land .nd its wealth—therefore its people—for centuries through the persistence of radioactivity. His book does show "the shadow of the colossus which looms behind tomorrow". The two bombs used at Bikini were merely of the 1946 variety.

A COUNTRY LOVER by Helen Guiton (Dent). The characters of this story are direct descendants of those in "Maria Chapdelaine". It is a simple story of habitant life in the Gatineau hills, and has a certain idylic charm. The writer dwells too sentimentally for our taste upon the flije of Jean-Paul Lamarche, a soul-conscious peasant boy, and upon his love for his city cousin, Celeste. Celeste is of the "Little Eva" school of heroines, too frail and good for this world. She obligingly departs, for no reason known to science, so that Jean-Paul can marry the sturdy peasant girl next door, as he should have done in the first place. A girl has to be able to carry wood and water if the race is to survive in the Gatineaux, it seems.

From the point of view of language, "A Country Lover" is well, though simply written, and the descriptions of the seasons are truly poetic and lovely. Nor does one always ask for realism; it is just that too much white-washing of what is indubitably a hard life becomes cloying, as do the main characters, who, though supposedly in close touch with the earth, are spiritualized almost out of existence. While I believe this picture of drawn, I cannot recommend it to the experienced reader, for whom it might have held some interest if "Maria Chapdelaine" had never been written. It adds nothing to the tradition.

The illustrations, by a young Canadian artist, Jean Simard, are deserving of the highest praise. They are delightful wood-cuts, strong, well-designed, showing the best of cubist influence, at once descriptive and symbolic. J. M. Dent may be justly proud of this sort of Canadian workmanship in the designing of the books they publish.

COLDEN NORTH by Marie McPhedran

(Macmillan). This is a boy's book, and as far as an adult can judge, an interesting, good one for a lad under his 'teens. It is a tale of our northern mining country and of a boy of twelve who drives huskies, mingles with Indians and Mounties, and goes prospecting in bush hoots. He even finds gold. The setting is authentic, for the writer has lived at Flin Flon as the wife of a mining engineer. The title of the book — "Golden North"—is intended to refer to more than the mineral. Young Canadians who read it should get from its pages not only information and excitement, but some of the poetry of the north and its self-reliant prospectors.

It is good to have Canadian books for our youngsters. The type is clear, easy to read.

The binding is decent and sturdy. Good Christmas holiday reading for them; neither too hair-raising nor too milk-soppish. T.J.A.

THE WONDERFUL MRS. INGRAM by Harlan Ware (McGraw-Hill). If Mr. Ware really knows women like the ones he writes about he is a poor unfortunate man and was probably driven to this dreadful extreme by the need for revenge. There is only one word to describe the women in this book, and that word is not suitable for use in a family journal. If you like to read about nasty, spoiled, perennial school girls, with big, rich, dumb husbands, ritzy homes and neglected children, here you are, girls. It's a slick magazine story guaranteed to make the tired housekeeper feel morally superior. As a timekiller, even a fashionable dash of psuedo-psychiatry does not save this from being a poor substitute for a chatty game of bridge.

NEW STRENGTH FOR OUR TEAM

Current Press Opinion

Do You Carve?

Christian Science Monitor: For the benefit of fathers who may have to operate on another turkey at Christmas dinner we set down a few pointers freshly gleaned from experience.

The first rule is: be nonchalant. Disregard the family's hecking. You may feel like daring one and all to try it themselves, but don't make the mistake of doing so. Junior may have been practicing in secret, as he did with the driving. It wouldn't strengthen your diplomatic position to have him show you up. Besides, even if you aren't really head of the family, sitting at the head of the table helps preserve the appearance.

As to systems: We belong to the pragmatic school. Plunge in and let the dressing and ornaments fall where they will. But you may wish to try a new theory which turns the bird on the side—facing the other way. This seems to us unnecessarily unorthodox. So does standing, but such a posture may give you more feeling of being on top of the job. Our own prime secret is preliminary dismantling. Once you've pulled a leg and wing off—and if they won't pull with very little help from the knife you have a valid complaint against the cook—little remains but

Of course, there are a few matters such as unearthing the combination to the dressing repository and discovery who wants dark and who wants white, not to mention finding time to get a bite yourself before the second run begins. But if you can't handle things like that you'd better order Christmas dinner at a restaurant.

Conservative Victory

Mentreal Star: The Progressive Conservative victory in the Digby-Annapolis-King's by-election yesterday can be properly regarded as the first fruits of Mr. George Drew's leadership of the party. Doubtless many other factors were involved, not least the grievances of the apple-growers of the famous Annapolis Valley loudly expressed since their preference was removed by the Geneva trade treaties announced a year ago. But the famous Nova Scotia seat held for the Liberals by the Rt. Hon. J. L. Ilsley for more than 20 years, has always been good fighting ground between the two main political parties, and in this riding at least, the enthusiasm generated at the Conservative convention last fall was transmitted in full measure into the party organization with the decisive results apparent in the voting.

The result was a striking upset. In Ottawa yesterday complacent Liberals were offering 3 to 1 on their candidate's victory. These gentlemen, after having paid their bets, should gain new respect for the power of Mr. Drew's leadership. They will recollect that their own party does not have any natural or eternal right to the possession of political power.

Juggled Their Ages

Niagara Falls Review: As in World War I, not all the men who served in War II were in the younger age brackets. As a matter of fact, a review of 22,088 policies issued by the Veterans Insurance Division of the Department shows quite clearly that a few of Canada's World War II veterans did a little juggling with their ages when they reached the recruiting office.

Veterans insurance is available only to veterans of the Second World War, yet the insurance figures show that seven World War II veterans between the ages of 68 and 72 have bought this insurance. Another 64 between the ages of 63 and 67 have purchased $97,000 worth, while 254 between the ages of 58 and 62 are policy holders. All told, about 2,600 veterans of World War II above the age of 48 have been purchasers.

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Jesus went out, and departed from the temple: and his disciples came to him for to shew him the buildings of the temple. And Jesus said unto them, See ye not all these things? verily I say unto you, There shall not be left here one stone upon another, that shall not be thrown down.

And as he sat upon the mount of Olives, the disciples came unto him privately, saying, Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?

And Jesus answered and said unto them, Take heed that no man deceive you....For there shall arise false Christs, and false prophets, and shall shew great signs, and wonders; insomuch that, if it were possible, they shall deceive the very elect....

Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away. But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only. (Matt. 24: 1-4, 24, 35, 36.)

This second epistle, beloved, I now write unto you; in both which I stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance... But, beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day.

The Lord is not slack concerning his prom-

The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is long-suffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up....

Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness. (II Pet. 3: 1, 8-10, 13.)

The St. Lawrence river, sea route to half a continent, now will have its outlet in Atlantic waters surrounded, except for the straits of Cabot and Belle Isle, by Canadian territory. While this development may have no practical advantages the fact remains that there are sentimental considerations, and we are doing a job of tidying up our boundaries.

London Taxis

New York Times: One of Britain's standard jokes about visiting Americans was retold in the House of Commons recently.

The House was discussing a court decision that taxicabs plying for hire were not obliged to stop when hailed. James Chuter Ede, Home Secretary, informed the House that London police had always understood that to be the law.

Then Prof. D. L. Savory asked, "Is the Minister not aware of repeated complaints that unless one has the apearance of being an American the taxicab will not stop for one?"

Mr. Ede replied, "I've heard complaints of that nature, and I've also heard complaints by Americans that the meter in cabs appears to be very unreliable when they are in them."

Basketball on two fronts here again this week, the lasses going Friday and the males on Saturday eve. Both jousts should be interesting as contests in this loop lately are right close. A twin bill for the men Saturday p.m. at the Collegiate gymnasium, but we haven't heard what time yet. "Legion trotted out last year's regulars with the Nicholls' brothers in a starring role, especially Ross in the nets, who kicked out plenty of Petes' rubber. The ex-soldiers favored the ganging style of play and it paid off. Mr. Crowley, a real hockey opportunist, raced away in the clear on two occasions to score single-handed after the Petes had ganged up. Legion looked best with a better-balanced team. They have potential power in all departments and made the most of any advantages thrown their way. It was hard to guess the probable power of the Petes, since they had four Belleville players in the lineup, but they have a good nucleus in Honey Tompkins, Bun Kingdon, Jopling, Mortimer and Ray Harding, all veterans of the hoc-

He adds: "Speaking of Tompkins, the perennial Honey, like the turkey, improves with age. He is still the canny, fast-skating and tricky forward who is liable to come up with a goal when least expected. He carried the offensive torch for the Petes. Meanwhile, there is -corner whispering about a senior 'B' entry from this village." Yeah, that rumor persists, and we believe both Legion and the Petes would accept Belleville in this group.

Whipper Watson and Atkins Beat Morgan and O'Connor

Virtue triumphed at the Brock Arena last night in the main pro grappling bout when the team of Watson-Atkins won against the villainous Morgan-O'Connor pair in two straight falls. A large crowd saw a fine mat card with all three bouts packed with action. Jack Sharkey refereed the main go, with Bert Maxwell handling the two prelims. The matmen won't be back here again till Jan. 12.

Whipper Watson, weighing 229, won the first fall of the main session in 31 minutes over Ben Morgan, at 322, when Sharkey disqualified the big bearded scrapper. The latter had hung the Whip in the ropes and, angry at the ex-boxing champ for push at the ex-boxing champ for pushing him back, threw Sharkey over

The semi-final saw Ralph Martin, scaling 220 pounds, win from Jack Moore, who goes 238, in 18 minutes with a drop kick after and cleaner, though he opened up toward the end with fists and elbows as the crowd howled in delight. He came back in over the ropes once with a slam that flattened both Moore and Referee Maxwell, and he followed this up with his wide open tactics to build up for the final fall to win the tussle. It was a good go and

Bill Stack, Bowmanville's 227pounder, won the prelim from Bulldog Drummond, at 232, in a time-limit decision by Referee time-limit decision by Referee Bert Maxwell. It also was a lively encounter with Bill the more popular as the Bulldog played it rough. Provinces Have No Comment On Margarine

By the Canadian Press Canada's provinces are ponder-ing whether to take steps affecting the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine within their own borders.

It is now legal to make and sell margarine in Canada and, unless individual provinces move to bar the butter substitute, it is expected to go on sale early next month.

I. C. Nollet, Saskatchewan agri-culture minister, said he would issue a statement later.

In Alberta, the attorney-gen-eral's department will consider the matter before the government's stand is announced.

Two Canadians Taking Course At British Military Band School

By NORMAN CARBBENS.

TWICKENHAM, Middlessex, England, Dec. 16 — (CP). — Of 50 young bandmasters taking a three-year course at Britain's Royal Military School of Music—goal of all Army bandsmen—two are Canadians who consider themselves lucky to be there.

"The musical training we are getting would cost thousands of dollars in givilian life," said Bandmaster Bernard J. Lyons of Kingston, who with Sgt. Roy McLeod of Vancouver has been in training since November, 1947.

"The team spirit is splendid," McLeod said. "Every student bandmaster takes his turn at conducting a band. There is no disalousy or petty rivalry. Every man here is an open book. If he were not in earnest he would not be taking the course."

Discipline at Kneller Hall—as it is generally known—is strict, but the worst fate that can befall an erring student is expulsion. In the case of a British soldier this would mean his immediate return to an Army depot. A soldier from overseas would be returned to his country of origin.

Including a band is immediate return to an Army depot. A soldier from overseas would be returned to his country of origin.

Skidding Frequent In Downtown Area

Winter selected a rather mean way of letting Peterborough know it had not been overlooked. The season started today with ice making it a treacherous business underfoot and in traffic. In Britain's capital city, where there is no shortage of organized entertainment, and where restaukants can be counted by the hundred, people do not stay out so late or so often as they do here. Most of the people I have met in Peterborough seem to think nothing of staying at a social function until one or two o'clock, even though they may be early morning risers. Theatres stay open later here than in England, and its unusual for societies and local organizations to start their evelopes. Drew Says PC's Oppose State Control

STITTSVILLE, Dec. 16.—(CP).

The home which has a washing income. Canadians do not com- machine is a rare exception in plain of high costs of such items. England. Let it not be thought, however, that Canadians have all the advantages. Few know the comfort of a winter evening or Sunday afternoon with the family gathered round a glowing open hearth, nerhaps roasting chestnuts as they listen to the radio. Nor are the English such fiends for inflicting the radio on every occupant of the house for nearly 24 hours a day, as is the practice in a large number of Canadian homes. The habit of using the radio as a background to conversation and even for reading, is probably the only annoying feature of Canadian life I have discovered.

More Resourceful Eating is an occupation to which good deal of time is devoted every day, and there is, therefore, ample room for comparison between the Canadian and English table. Probably no Canadian who has visited Britain would deny that the Englishwoman is a good deal more resourceful than the Canadian. In Canada the plenti-ful supplies of a wide variety of foods are not used to the best advantage. In the English kitchen there is more mixing and baking and boiling and less opening of tins. We look askance at the pie crust which was not prepared in the home and devote much more time to the preparation of meals. It is the complaint of the English at the present time that while food rationing allows modest but sufficient quantities, it restricts the variety of meals almost to a minimum. Canadian stores offer a far wider choice and yet the variety of menus served bears no relation to the greater advantages of shopping here. I suggest that with equal opportunities, the Englishwoman would keep the better

The Canadian system of railroad level crossings is something which makes an English visitor sit up in amazement. You will find level crossings only in the remote country districts. Walking on any section of the railroad is strictly prohibited, and my first impression on seeing a passenger step from the train on to the track was suicide. I was on the verge of calling the alarm when I discovered that no one else was at all concerned!

Canadian hospitality is some-thing which all Britons, and par-ticularly Londoners, should sample and, perhaps, practise. It took a major war to break down the characteristic reserve of the English. There are prorbably few Canadian ex-servicemen who cannot testify to the warm welcome the British gave to the men who fought the war, but nevertheless, there is still an inperturbable feature of the English which is often mistaken for indifference. often mistaken for indifference. The English are good-natured encugh once the "protective barrier" is broken down, but here is a refreshing frankness about a Canadian's approach to a stranger.

A keen interest in the Royal A keen interest in the Royal Family is very much more apparent among Canadians than in England, where, perhaps, the King's almost daily appearances in various parts of the country, tend to result in his activities being taken more or less for granted. The National Anthem is sung more frequently here. The King usually concludes the evening's theatre program, but is less frequently sung at informal meetings and social functions in England.

Several of his anecdotes brought roars of laughter from members of the society. He said that on one occasion he had been asked by Prime Minister Mackenzie King how he was able to stand the strain of long service in the hospital for the war's most seriously injured men, and he had replied that it was the spirit of the blind there that had helped to lift his spirits.

He was introduced by Ed.

Hear Proposal To Revive

Ouoddy Plan

By GEORGE RONALD.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—(CP)

—The Quoddy, "unwanted" twin of the St. Lawrence seaway and hydro proposal is back in the news.

hydro proposal is back in the news.

Canada and the United States have launched another partial review of the longistanding Passamaquoddy power project. The International Joint Commission will meet here in January to hear a proposal to revive the plan.

Th projet, as originally drawn in the 1920s, is to harness the great tides of Passamaquoddy Bay, on the Maine-New Brunswick border, and of Cobscook Bay, which lies wholly within the State of Maine.

Both bays would be dammed, and by means of a controlled flow between the two basis so formed, the tremendous tidal range of the whole Bay of Fundy would be put to use for generation of electric power.

The original project was solely that of the United States. Work was started by the late President Roosevelt's administration in 1936 but has not completed because of lack of funds. More recent proposals have included Canada, but Quoddy's progress has been spotty.

Decision of the Joint Commission to study "certain matters" involved in the East-coast plan comes at a time when hope \(\hat{\chi}\) s arisen for the vast St. Lawrence project, another victim of endless pigeon-holing.

It includes a dam and power development at the International Rapids near Corawall, that would produce 2,200,000 horse-power of electric energy which Canada and the United States would share equally. Builders Finish

Don't let a Cold mar your Holiday Season

DECEMBER is here and with it lurks the "common cold"! Ontario citizens are reminded now of a few simple helpful rules to safeguard their health, and that of others.

Prevention of the common cold is the responsibility of all, and if everyone plays his part much unnecessary illness; expense and discomfort may be avoided. With the holiday season looming ahead, when so much happiness depends on everyone feeling fit, why run the risk of "catching cold"-or letting members of your family face that danger?

In the interest of parents and families, the Ontario Department of Health recommends every Ontario citizen to study the common-sense precautions suggested below and act upon them.

Five Simple Precautions

- Take plenty of rest. Avoid becoming unduly tired. Endeavour to follow a
- If a cold overtakes you, go to bed until it improves. If it does not clear up rapidly, do not hesitate to seek medical advice.
- Avoid becoming wet, chilled or overheated If clothing becomes wet, it should be changed as quickly as possible.
- Be thoughtful of others. If suffering from a cold, do not spread germs by coughing

PRETTY PARTY DRESS-There's a simple look to this pretty little dress that is most disarming, for it is a nicely pretty little dress that is most disarming, for it is a nicely detailed number, a perfect choice for the holiday round of a pretty young Miss. It is of taffeta. Spiraling bands of finely stitched piping lend animation to the skirt and give it that different look. The top is essentially simple with its deep scooped-out neckline and short sleeves. A dainty fan scatter pins and monogrammed shortie gloves give it the requisite

I've been studying fruit pre-Lenten wedding and anniv-cake recipes, and the more I study ersary cakes, and also informatcake recipes, and the more I study the more confused I get. I wanted to make a rich, dark, fruit cakes the out to about % inch thickness, cake for a Mid-February wedcake for a Mid-February wedding. I would like to make this right after the holidays and intended to use the recipe for medium rich fruit cake; it "Bride's Cake". Bride's Cake: 1/2 cup shortening, 1/2 cup butter, 11/2 cups brown sugar, 5 eggs, 1/2 cup molasses, 1/4 cup brandy, ¼ cup juice from cherries, ½ tablespoon vanilla, 11/2 cup heavy sour cream, 2 cups flour (?), 2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon each allspice, nutmeg, salt, soda, 1 lb. each raisins, currants, dates, 1 cup maraschino

But I do not have time this week to try this cake for you, so since I know exactly what to do with the rich fruit cake I think you had better make it for safety's sake.

Rich Fruit Cake could stand the addition of molasses and brandy (1/4 cup of each) if you increase the flour (cake flour) from "about" 3 cups to 4 cups, and increase the baking powder from 1 teaspoon to 2 teaspoons. ANSWERcotch Shortbread

One cup butter, 1/2 cup fresh confectioners' sugar, 2 cups sift-ed all-purpose flour, ¼ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt. Cream the butter very well with a wooden spoon or work it with the hands until creamy, then add ed together. (Do not be tempted to add more flour or you will toughen the shortbread and preat sides of dough to keep it straight. Cut out in small desired shapes and arrange on unbuttered cookie sheets. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until just tinged with deep yellow. Watch these close-ly and re-arrange them in the oven to keep them evenly baked.

NEW TOYS, like a cow that gives milk, are fine for teaching children of the right age the facts of life. But they're over the head of the youngster wailing above. Environ-ment toys are always good selection. The farm boy can be trained to like his surroundings with toys copied from "real things" like a tractor. Remember, too, that toys such as saws are good to divert the destructive impulses of an active boy, according to experts. If such toys are given, make sure your youngster has some place to use them.

Stuffing and Roasting Turkey For Christmas

LIGHT WOOL classic dress. It's the touch of baby-soft-ruch-ing that lends such an air to this slim sheath of feather-weight wool. It is a perfect allday dress, and especially good from desk to dusk. The ruching bands encircle the high neckline and lend interest to the fitted narrow sleeves. The same motif is repeated around the beautifully draped skirt.

The turkey itself will be expensive enough without me sug-gesting that you buy oysters, or mushrooms or nuts, to put in the stuffing, so I have selected this basic bread stuffing and suggest-ed the use of celery—but this mey be replaced with either mushrooms or oysters or nuts, or a combination of all four. It is a crumbly stuffing.

Basic Bread Stuffing For Fowl (see variations above) Chop 4 cups outside celery very finely and simmer them in boiling water to cover for 15 minutes. Drain, reserving 1 cup of the liquid. Cook ½ cup finely chopped onion in % cup butter, until transparent but not brown. Mix the celery, celery liquid, butter and onions with 3 (15 cups) lightly packed day-old breadcrumbs. Add 4 to 8 easpoons poultry seasoning or mixed poultry seasoning and sage, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 teaspoon pepper. Mix well. This amount will stuff the crop and cavity of an average - sized bird. Roasting Temperatures For Tur-

After dressing, cleaning, stuf-fing and trussing turkey place in roasting pan breast down, then sprinkle with salt and pepper and flour mixed together, and then sprinkle pan with flour. Place in oven of 450 deg. Fahr. and roast one-half hour, adding ½ cup water to pan when flour is brown. Now, turn bird over and reduce heat to 350 deg. Far. allowing 18 minutes per lb. for a 15-lb. or 20lb. bird. Smaller birds require 20 minutes per lb.

THE HAT WITH FORMAL GOWNS-According to Gloria Swanson (and who should know better?) the eve ning hat has replaced the tiara, and she is glad of it. If it's the sparkle of gems you want on your head, as it rises beautifully out of a formal decolletage, pin them to your hat. We go along with the experts, loving the look of a tiny pillbox, turban, toque, made of fabulous fabric and bedecked or bedizened with precious looking gems or feathers. For the usual sitting-around evenings, as contrasted with get-up-and-dance occasions, women do look a lot more dressed their prettiest if such a bijou bit of millinery tops even the most formal, low cut gown and its more usual accessories. THE STARS

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE For Friday, December 17

By dint of sheer attack upon narled and perplexing entanglements, in which peculiar or strange factors give complexity and, by direct and clever attack upon unusual or hidden factors, an involved and threatened impasse may be remedied. But keep alert to trickery, or fraud, and fortify position and assets, as well as credit and reputation, in business and personal life. For the Brihday

Those whose birthday it is may have the opportunity of demonstrating unusual creative talents in which novel or unique ideas, cleverly and practically put over, may save a menaced or involved crisis in important affairs. This is true in business, finance, innovations, as well as in all sorts of exceptional personal relations. A trick or sensational undercurrent may be dragged from its roots to a surprising turn of vital matters into safe and fruitful channels. Protect funds, credit and reputation.

A child born on this day may be clever, original and daring, with talents and skills needed to keep in safe and sound creative channels. Strange or unprincipled tendencies should be "nipped in the bud."

SAFETY IN DIRECTION MOST NO Trump game contracts which depend on the declarer's care are to some extent problems in direction. They hinge upon his keeping a particular defender from gaining the lead at a dangerous time, when allowing his partner to have the lead can do no harm. The risk may come from the fact that the dangerous defender has an established suit which he can run. Or it may arise from his ability to lead through an honor which will be trapped thereby in a tenace. In other words, safety lies in one direction and danger in the other. "Three dollars for five minutes!" was the indignant note written to the police depart-ment by an out-of-town visitor this week. He was fined for overtime parking on George St. The man enclosed his cheque for the fine, adding his blunt comment: "My first visit to your city, and my last, I hope."—R.B.

At the children's Christmas party at the YMCA on Thursday night Santa Claus had one of his many embarrassing mo-ments. Gordon Morrison's little boy Billy received his present and then stepped back from Santa. Billy stood looking at him. Everyone waited for Billy to return to his dad. But no action of that kind was going to happen until Billy received a kiss from Santa. Old St. Nick came through with the request without a moment's hesitation.

Mistletoe used in England at Christmas is from the apple orchards of Normandy and some from the orchards of Herefordshire.

Terbenche, who joined Port Hope police department two years ago, resigned from the force and acresigned from the force and according to his letter of resignation, received in Town Clerk Arthur Marks' office yesterday afternoon, he was quitting his job because of poor health which would require hospitalization in the new year and because he could see no future for him or its wife "on the salary received." Said salary amounts to $1,800 per year.

The Examiner was informed authoritatively that there was no connection whatever between the present investigation into police affairs and the resignation of Constable Terbenche.

Asked for a comment yesterday afternoon, Councillor William Austin, chairman of the police committee, said that he had nothing to say except that Constable Terbenche's reasons were contained in his letter of resignation.

This is the third change in the police department in the past few months. Last summer, Ernest Purdy resigned and he was succeeded as chief of police by C. W. Graham. Last month, Sergeant Bert Warren was dismissed from the police force and a charge of theft laid against him. Later in the same month Purdy was charged with theft.

Why Shouldn't Margarine Be Yellow?

We doubt if Mr. James Gifford, reeve of Ennismore and chairman of the Ontario Cream Producers' Association, will get very far with his protest against the use of yellow colouring in the manufacture of margarine, "That golden yellow colour has been recognized for a long time as symbolic of the delightful flavour of good butter and we are entitled to reserve the right to see that no substitutes be allowed to copy this colour", says Mr. Gifford, according to Canadian Press. With all due respect to Mr. Gifford, his Association is not entitled to anything of the kind; as everyone knows, the colour of butter is artificially produced during the greater part of the year; do the dairymen hope to establish some proprietary right in yellow vegetable die? If butter makers can put yellow colouring into their product, why should not makers of margarine do the same? The use of such colouring is not contrary to the pure food laws, and we think that those laws alone should be binding upon the manufacture of margarine. So long as margarine is clearly marked for what it is, let the makers colour it yellow, or blue, or black, or whatever they please.

The dairymen should bear in mind that they have profited for many years from a ban which has now been shown up as illegal. The fight is over, and they can only lose public goodwill by making a last-ditch fight on a matter of colour.

And what have they to fear? They cannot produce enough butter to fill Canada's needs, and they get a very high price for what they make. We venture to say that they will always be able to sell all the butter they make. New Zealand, a very great dairying country, does not suffer because margarine in made and sold there. Most people will buy butter when they can afford it, and when they cannot they have a right to buy the best substitute they can get at the price they can pay.

For years the dairymen have represented margarine as a Whore of Babylon—an unspeakable iniquity against which they sought to protect the wayward public. But the jig is up. Margarine is now legal, and when they try to put foolish restrictions on the colouring of the new product, the dairymen merely show themselves to be bad losers. . . .

The regulations respecting the sale of margarine and its manufacture lie in the discretion of the provincial governments. We expect that the Conservative government of Ontario will give little heed to the importunities of the dairy industry, for the Conservative platform was strongly favourable to margarine. It would be strange indeed to hamper provincially what was so enthusiastically endorsed federally.

"Over Which I Have The Honour To Preside"

We chanced to hear the Honourable William A. Goodfellow, Ontario Minister of Public Welfare, speaking over the radio the other evening. He talked about old age pensions, and undoubtedly said many wise and informative things. We do remember his saying that an old couple, both entitled to receive pensions, would receive $720, and if they had the maximum outside income of $360, would have a total annually of Unfortunately we became lost in his verbiage, or rather, were so perplexed and disturbed by his way of speaking that we could not follow his pronouncements. It is not necessary for a provincial Cabinet Minister to begin an address by saying: "The Department over which I have the honour to preside". He is an "honourable" already by reason of his job, so he could properly have left honeur out of his ad-It would have been sufficient, and easier, were gargling an oyster?

if Mr. Goodfellow had merely said: "My department is Public Welfare".

Public officials and politicians should study the knack of forming sentences which will flow into hearers' ears easily. pleasantly, and effectively. They need no special course in how to win friends and influence people, nor any speechtrainer. What is required is an attentive ear, a disposition to speak naturally, and an honest effort to use the King's English simply and decently. Then our ears would not be ravaged by "to keep abreast of" instead of "to keep up with", "it is my wish" instead of "I wish", and "it is essential that the state" instead of "the state should". Further, it is annoying and slightly obscene for a Canadian to say "hundurd" instead of "hundred"; "instituotions" rather than "institutions" and "noo" for "new".

The English language in Canada should not be thus profaned over the radio and by public officials. We Canadians, even we who live in the undulating regions of Ontario, are not a species of hill-billy, who must be appealed to in ugly distortions of English. The language in good Canadian usage is an historic, beautiful and pungent instrument, the product of fifteen hundred years, the repository of half a dozen tongues, the key to commerce, romance and high art. Let us not desecrate this heritage which is a pearl of great price, the voice of the ages and the envy of lesser breeds without the language.

A Wronged Man

A new play about Henry VIII, by Maxwell Anderson, has just been presented in New York, and we observe that a New York critic refers to the hero as "old England's pot-walloping, deerslaying, gluttonous, much - married monarch". As a description of one of the most remarkable kings in history this impresses us as downright idiotic. Because King Henry was a man of large stature-incidentally a great athlete in his youth-and because he was particularly unfortunate in his relations with women, a notion has grown up that he was a bit of a scoundrel, a bit of a fool, and a man of gross and swinish personal habits.

As a matter of fact there is not a scrap of evidence to show that Henry ate or drank any more than any other man of his time, or that he had bad manners. But there is plenty of evidence to show that he could be charming when he chose, and that his conduct in public was all that could be expected of a great prince. As for his intellect, a study of his foreign and domestic policy disposes quickly of any idea that he was a fool and there is plenty of evidence to show that he was a writer of considerable

Henry was also a musician of talent, and wrote some excellent songs. As Christmas time approaches we publish here the words of a Christmas carol written by Henry, which we feel may he of interest to our readers.

Green grow'th the holly, So doth the ivy; Though winter's blasts blow ne'er so high,

Green grow'th the holly.

Gay are the flowers, Hedgerows and ploughlands; The days grow longer in the sun

Soft fall the showers. Full gold the harvest Grain for thy labour With God must work for daily bread

Else, man, thou starvest. Last fall the shed leaves, Russet and yellow; But resting-buds are snug and safe

Where swung the dead leaves. Green grow'th the holly So doth the tvy; The God of life can never die, Hope! saith the holly.

The man who wrote this was, we submit, something more than a pot-walloper and a glutton.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Edgar Bergen has gone off the air for a time to seek fresh technique and fresh ideas. Yes, but what does he expect to do with those on the radio?

Commenting on some unfavourable references which have been made to Mr. Drew the Ottawa Journal says: "The most sticks are found under the tree with the biggest apples". Or, alternatively, the biggest nuts.

The Journal of the Canadian Medical Association says that,"it has been found by the pharyngoscope that snoring is produced by the thin edge of vellum of the posterior faucial pillar . . . which in turn is affected by the muscle tone of the glossopharyngeal arch and the thickness of the mucosa". Yes, but what dress. "Preside" is a heavy, formal word. is it that makes a snorer sound as if he

Notes And Queries By ALPHA

DEAR ALPHA: Since the bells in St. John's Church are called "The People's Chimes" can anybody in Peterborough have them rung

ANSWER; A person who wants to have the pells rung must secure permission from the Rector of St. John's and pay the bell-ringer Rector of St. John's and pay the bell-ringer a fee... Two weeks ago today the weather was so balmy and bright that even I was moved to delight by it. All over town people were commenting on how wonderful the weather was, but were doing nothing to celebrate it, or by way of thanksgiving. So I decided that joy should not be unconfined.

I phoned the rector, gave him my name, and said: "May I have the bells rung?". I think he asked "Medding or funera!?" I had think he asked "Wedding or funeral?". I had rather expected him to say: "Are you Chris-tian or pagan?", but he didn't, not even when I told him I wanted to celebrate the weather. He even said, without comment, that the bells could be rung if I could get the bellringer to ring them. So I had a chat with Mr. Richard Ford who lives on Sheridan Street and is sexton of St. John's and in charge of the bells. I did not tell him why I wanted the bells rung—merely that it was some sort of celebration. He agreed, and accepted a dollar for his services. He even let me select the music from his repertoire.

WE went to the church and climbed up a adder into the belfry. In the little chamber below the nine bells was a mechanism such as a carillon has: horizontal small wooden levers (one for each bell) which the carillonneur strikes with his fist. However, Mr. Ford didn't go to that small keyboard (it is apparently in disuse) but to the well. Down the side of the well from the bells were nine ropes, fastened so that they were taut at shoulder level. Each had at that spot a leather covering. Mr. Ford tinkered with the ropes; tightening or loosening them, stood back and began to pull them — not up and down, but out from the wall, as if plucking. And Lo! the bells pealed. He played a sort of warming-up fanfare and then handed me his tune-books. His secular repertoire was not large, but enough for a glad response to ening day.

And that is why "Men of Harloch", "Killarney", "Bonnie Dundee" and some joyous hymns showered over George Street between three-thirty and four o'clock two weeks ago today. Mr. Ford wanted to end with the Na tional Anthem (not knowing the purpose of celebration). He said: "We always do. It's for The Public". He was persuaded to end with "Now Thank We All Our God"....Perhaps it was the first time in Peterborough's rung to celebrate a fine day. Not an un-worthy reason for a peal of bells, I think.

QUESTION: Why do we stop growing? For v instance, why does a baby's arm lengthen from several inches to a couple of feet eighteen years later, and then stop. Why shouldn't we keep on sprouting—legs, arms, tongues— everything? Hair and nails continue to grow. Why not the rest of us?

ANSWER: I do not know, nor, I believe, does anybody else. That is one of the mys-teries science has not solved.

OUESTION: You have frequently answered Questions about the names of Peterbor-ough streets. Can you tell me why Arndon Street and subsection are called that? ANSWER: Arndon is not named after some

Dutch town near Arnhem, as people guess. It is named after the builders of the houses in the new section, Mr. Arnold Steele and Mr. Don Ephgrave. Put housebuilders Arn. and Don. together, and presto! you have

QUESTION: All publishing houses have a problem regarding lead poisoning of employees in composing rooms. What has been done to solve it? What success has been achieved to date?

ANSWER: I peddled your question to Mr. J. H. McCauley, head of the Examiner's composing room, and a man of wide experience in compositors' kingdoms. He said he has never known anybody in a composing room who has been poisoned by lead. He thus rules out the Examiner (which uses the very best lead) but perhaps there are some publishing houses where lead poisoning is not unknown.

Lead in small doses is used for treating certain diseases; in large doses it causes gastro-intestinal irritation. Acute poisoning by lead is rare. Chronic lead poisoning is not (house-painters may get it from the lead in paint). I know nothing about its treatment, though the other day a pamphlet on metallic poisoning came into my hands.

The pamphlet was issued by some advertising-wise firm "to draw the physicians attention as to the CAUSE of cancer, rheumatism, arthritis, infantile paralysis, ulcers, tuberculosis, anemia, etc., arising from METALLIC POISONING". The advertiser wisnes to introduce a "successful non-drug antidote in New-Clear Therapy". Doctors are warned that "TRUTH WILL PREVAIL" and advised to install this machine, which looks like a superior radio set found in the Signals section at an army headquarters. It produces a "micro-wave" and gives "intra-collular massage". "Disrobing unnecessary. Free from Shocks, Sparks, Burns, etc., or Unpleasant Feeling".

If you are still worried about lead poise ing, I shall glady send you my copy of this remarkable pamphlet.

FOR THE RECORD: There will be no outdoor lighted Christmas trees in Peterborough this year (nor were there any last year) because of the regulations imposed to conserve hydro-electric power. I would suggest this to our local marchants: If we are in the same fix next year, why not put the money spent on the Santa Claus parade—a dull inanimate affair it was this year—into renting a diesel engine? Then you could generate power for bright lights, and have half a dozen lighted trees, and perhaps some gay street lighting.

Letters To The Editor

IS THE WARD SYSTEM WANTED? Sir: Since the election I have had very nany of those who supported me on what may call my constructive platform insist that do not let the fourteen hundred citizens down but continue in my endeavour to, as they put it, get more people interested in City Government. Many have told me the people could not have understood what I was advocating or more would have supported

I had almost decided that the people are satisfied with things as they are, forgetting that we now have a generation that did not live under the Ward System of City Govern-

If, after the reader has finished reading and thinks the change feasible, if he will draw some one else's attention to this letter, he will be doing the cause a favour. I advo cate that a meeting be called of citizens in each Ward. The citizens of other wards other than those of the stated ward, would be welcome as guests only. Necessary officers would be elected and two members elected to repre-sent that Ward, at the City Council meetings. This procedure would be adapted at all the other ward organization meetings The two elected from each ward would form what we may call the Citizens' or Peoples' Council who will attend the City Council meetings as a delegation. This Citizens as to putting into effect any legislation. They would carry to our City Council recommendations or grievances from the citizens.

As yet I have not explained the Ward Syspalities calling themselves a city, operate.

At present we either in many cases refuse to go to the polls or have to vote for some one we do not think will be a good alderman or vote for a stranger. It is something like the game the children play, tick, tack, toe. Do we want to continue to play childish games?

Under the Ward System each Ward will elect its own members to the City Council,

If it is decided to have two from each ward it may be well to vote for two and the two receiving the largest vote would be elected If one is to be chosen from each ward it may be well to vote for one of the candidates and the one polling the largest number of votes to be the member elected.

There are a great many things that can be done that at present are not being done, if we elect a representative City Council.

It is up to the citizens to show me they will give me support if I continue.

Two ways would be letters to the press, or personal letters to me.

I will most likely have to show a proper demand for the meetings, if we are to get places to hold meetings. Mr. and Mrs. Citizen the stage is being set.

Where are the actors? If the floodlights I have turned on are not enough, I will add more by request.

The Ward System will eventually come, but we should have the Citizens' Council functioning in the meantime.

MAURICE E. KETCHÉSON.

PLACING DR. ENDICOTT

Sir: My attention has been called to recent press and radio reports on the activities of the "Toronto Provisional Peace Council," in which one Dr. J. G. Endicott has often been announced or referred to as a "former per-sonal adviser to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-

In 1939, Dr. Endicott was asked, together with some other missionaries, to help train secretaries for the New Life Movement, a social and cultural organization in China. Like other workers, he served under the General Secretary of this movement. If he

(From the Authorized Version)

And they arrived at the country of the which is over against Galilee And when he went forth to land, there met him out of the city a certain man, which had devils long time, and ware no ciothes, neither abode in any house, but in the tombs. When ne saw Jesus, he cried out, and fell down be-fore him, and with a loud voice said, What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of God most high? I beseech thee, tormen me not....

And Jesus asked him saying, What is thy name? And he said, Legion: because many devils were entered into nim. And they besought him that he would not command them to go out into the deep.

And there was an nerd of many swine feeding on the mountain: and they besought him that he would suffer them to enter into them. And he suffered them. Then went the devils out of the man, and entered into the swine; and the herd ran violently down s steep place into the lake, and were choked.

When they that fed them saw what was done, they fied, and went and told it in the city and in the country. Then they went out to see what was done; and came to Jesus, and found the man, out of whom the devils were departed, sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed, and in his right mind; and they were afraid...
Then the whole multitude of the country of the Gadarenes round about besought hi to depart from them; for they were taken ship, and returned back again,

Now the man out of whom the devils were departed besought him that he might be with him: but Jesus sent him away, saying, Return to thine own house, and shew how great things God hath done unto thee. And he went his way, and published throughout the whole city how great things Jesus had done unto him. (Luke 8: 26-28, 36-35, 37-39.)

Ottawa Cicizen: In Canada it costs twice as much to dress women and girls as it does to clothe men and boys, if department store sales, as reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, offer any criterion. During October no less than $22,625,000 was spent on women's finery, an increase of 38 per cent. over the same month of 1947. Even allowing for increased prices these figures should mean that Canadian women and lasses will blossom out this Yuletide season more de atively clad than ever before.

Men, poor things, spent only $11,078,000 on suits, socks, shirts and such things, for themselves and their sons. But this figure represents an increase of more than 34 per cent. over October of last year. And it is not only on clothing that Canadians are spending more money than last year. Contrary to the sales trend in the United States which has sales trend in the United States which has declined despite the approach of Christmas, Canada's retail trade has taken a sharp upturn. For October it soared 15 per cent months of this year the gain was 11 per cent. Canadian retail stores are now doing alost three times as much business as before the war.

CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Jack Sharkey was here a few days ago, refereeing a wrestling natch, and we got talking to him. The Boston gob is quite a talker. Thinks to this day that he could have beaten Dempsey that time exept for a "sneak punch". We didn't argue with him on account of (a) he's much too big, and (b) he did have a fast one pulled on him. But we still feel that Dempsey could beat him in his prime anytime. And Sharkey claims the Manassa Mauler could have "murdered" Louis if they'd both met in their prime. The only one Dempsey couldn't beat was Tunney, a smart boxer, which Louis isn't. Punch, yes, but Dempsey at his peak packed a kayo in both hands.

The "garrulous gob" was a good fighter, too, and won the heavyweight boxing title of the world after Dempsey and Tunney retired. But that's all ring history now. Unlike a lot of other pugs, Sharkey is definitely no stumblebum. He is a big, good-looking guy, a grandfather at 46, and with plenty of shekels. And not much work to do. No marks on his mug, quick-moving and as hot-headed as ever. Burns up fast, like he always did in his fighting days. Once here before, a year or so back, he and burly John Katan had trouble. Jack kicked Katan a, few times in the shin to break a hold and John wanted to make something of it afterward. Sharkey was all set to take him on when it was broken up in the dressing-room. Katan could probably have beaten the whey out of him, but Sharkey was game.

You Needn't Worry

Yeah, don't worry about Sharkey being punchy or broke, or anything. He has all his merbles. Don't worry too much about him unless you're making more than $30,000 a year. He makes better than that just going around as a mitt or mat referee a few times a week. Usually in the big towns, but occasionally in smaller centres DETROIT, Dec. 17—(AP)—The way was cleared today for a possible 1949 renewal of the Harms-worth Trophy International projected changes in the rules to Speedboat races—first since Gar permit Wilson to challenge for sports—mad continent if you have the name. like this. Takes a flat guarantee and then a percentage of the gate.

> Sharkey doesn't work anymore, except these trips to referee here and there. He sold his big bar in Boston-by the way, he dropped around to Dip Clapper's place when he was here, as he knew Dit-during the war. He owns a $100,000 house in Boston and says he has $35,000 worth of antique furniture in it. Has a son who goes six-three and scales 195 in university. Two NHL clubs have their eyes on him. And Jack just fools around and picks himself up better than 30 G's a year! That's "Americana" for you, eh? The boxing sailor has come a long way, it seems.

Basketball is on tap for followers of this sport tonight and tomorrow eve, male and female. A double-header by the girls this e'en at the YWCA, starting at eight, with Neill's playing the CGEers, followed by Nurses against the Collis crew. Nothing more then till after 1949 breaks on the scene. The twin bill tonight should be well worth viewing. Saturday p.m. in the large Collegiate gym, two men's exhibitions are offered their many supporters. As Toronto Varsity can't make it, till after the Christmas holidays, the initial tilt will be at seven between Marines "A" cagers and the "Y" Wonders-local all-stars. At 8.15, Lindsay meets the Marines "B" team. So, there you are, folks.

CNR Diesels of Belleville have applied to play OHA senior "B" this season, Frank Buckland informs us. But they want in the mixed intermediate "A"-senior "B" grouping with Gananoque, Queen's, three Kingston clubs and probably Trenton. Likely that's where racing past the surprising Chicago Black Hawks in the league standings. Black Hawks, after two years as the league's doormats, sprinted past Montreal insure, but it might be Trenton, the Fliers, Cobourg-Port Hope Comsure, but it might be Trenton, the Fliers, Cobourg-Port Hope Comto third place last week and a win over Boston will put them a single point behind the second-place Bruins, who haven't won tills.

RE-FRESHER BOXES have a permanent place in the home. They are an essential item and no housewife can be without them.

REFRESHER BOXES are molded of "STYRON", the only plastic that is non-toxic, odorless and tasteless. Even boiling water will not warp REFRESHER BOXES.

Nothing mildews in RE-FRESHER BOXES. Butter will never get rancid. Vegetables will not wilt or become spoiled.

Vegetables can be kept for weeks in RE-FRESHER BOXES when kept in the refrigerator. All the goodness in vegetables is maintained as neither heat nor cold to freezing point penetrates RE-FRESHER BOXES.

The most perishable of all cheese is Philadelphia cream cheese. Prove to yourself by placing an open package of Philadelphia cream cheese in a RE-FRESHER BOX. Place another package in a glass dish and open it. The cheese will mildew and turn yellow in about a week in a glass dish and open it.

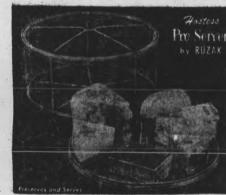

It will remain fresh and edible for several weeks in RE-FRESHER BOXES.

Cold does not penetrate "STYRON" to freezing point and you cannot freeze anything in RE-FRESHER BOXES. However, if you want to freeze ice-cream, you must remove the cover, place the RE-FRESHER BOX in the freezing compartment and when ice-cream, puddings or Jello are frozen, cover the RE-FRESHER BOX up, wrap in newspaper and on the hottest day, the ice-cream, puddings and Jello will remain perfectly fresh and frozen for several hours.

Washing: You can wash RE-FRESHER BOXES in the most soapy waters. Do not use Brillo or any harsh material in washing RE-FRESHER BOXES.

Candles, cakes and cookies will remain fresh for many weeks. To prepare for a party in making small sandwiches, make them the night before, place them in the RE-FRESHER BOXES in the refrigerator and you can serve them the following night perfectly fresh, which will give you plenty of time with your guests.

Official Election In US To Last Another 2 Weeks

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 (CP).

The United States election—
even most of the shouting, as a matter of fact— is over. But there will be official election whispers for another couple of weeks yet.

Although Harry S Truman is safely back in the White House

Senators and Representatives) has voted for Truman.

System Under Attack

In recent years, the system has been under constant attack; not the "real" election ceremony itself but the provision whereby a state's entire electoral vote goes to the candidate who gets a ma-

266 of the 531 electoral votes. Lodge and Gossett, opposed to this possibility, point out that their plan would eliminate it.

Although Harry S Truman is safely back in the White House and Senator Albem W. Barkley has stepped up to Vice-Presidential rank, the "real" election still hasn't happened.

It got under way last Monday when the 531 men and women elected to the Electoral College met in the various States to cast ballots for "the next President."

Four Official Steps

1—The Governor of each state collects these ballots and forwards them to the Secretary of State in Washington.

2—The Secretary of State bundles them off to Congress.

3—The Senate and House meet in joint session January 6.

4—The presiding officer of the Senate opens the ballot box and starts counting.

Only then will the world learn—officially—that the majority of the popular vote in that state's entire electoral vote goes to the candidate who gets a majority of the popular vote in that state.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. (Rep. Mass.) and Representative Ed Grossett (Dem. Texas), are sponsoring a constitutional amendment to divide a state's electoral votes among the candidates in proportion to their percentage of the state's popular vote. An example:

Despite Ohio's November 2 popular vote of 1,461,476 for Truman and 1,443,025 for Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Truman will get the state's entire electoral votes goes to the candidate who gets a majority of the popular vote in that state.

More than $300 cash was mysteriously stolen from the office of the Weston Bread and Cake Company at 62 Hunter St., East, during the night. The loss was during the night. New Look and New Price In Men's Clothes For 1949

The men who decided to a great extent what the well-dressed Canadian will wear predict a new look and a new price in men's clothing next spring.

easy-fitting style which will still be double-breasted; in three out

There are always notable gowns for evening in every color; we write of the pet basic color, the one which repeats and repeats in your eye as you look over some mob scene of the evening, a gala opening or spectacle. Martyr Complex

Martyr Complex

There are many mothers who have the martyr complex. They never weary of descanting upon all that they have given up for the sake of their children, and they perpetually remind their children of what a debt of gratitude they owe them. All of which is mere hokum. Certainly, after having thrust the burden of life upon a child, by every code of fairness and decency a mother is bound to do the best she can to take care of that child's health, to give it as good an education as possible and to teach it manners and morals and so fit it for the struggle of life. So Mother needn't take any too much credit to hertake any too much credit to her-self for doing her manifest duty to her children.

This isn't saying that children shouldn't love and honor their mother and make every possible return for her kindness to them. They should, for people deserve a lot of credit for even doing their duty. But the obligation of the parent to the child is many times greater than that of the child to

It is a pity that your mother cannot realize how fed up one can get on whining and complaining, and how little inclined one feels to hand out the gratitude that is demanded. If she could be con-vinced of this, she would be a better sport and try to hold your love by companionship, instead of exacting your effection as a duty.

The pre-Christmas pace of Mrs. Peterborough allows little time for fussing and pondering on her duties as keeper of the family's digestion. But, the Christmas dinner she serves must be a blue ribbon winner and hold up a long-established tradition.

"The last shall be first" the saying goes, and so the fruit cake and steam pudding are first to be considered for the Christmas menu. Their flavor is greatly mproved if they are stored for a time before using. The period of time varies with the housewife and her recipe. Some cakes are ready for eating the week after they are baked, all are improved by at least a month's storage and there are cooks who make the following years' Christmas cake while festive celebrations are still

A generous quantity of fruit and nuts makes for a good Christ-mas cake. It is much improved in flavor if they can be soaked overnight in brandy. A batter rich with butter and eggs is blended thorughly, then mixed with the saturated fruit. The cake should be baked in a slow oven with just enough water to create a small amount of steam during the entire baking process. Steaming gives fruit in the fin-ished product tenderness, good flavor and a high shine. Steaming also insures a moist cake that will cut easily into paper-thin slices.

In making either pudding or fruit cake a good plan is to get all the fruit ready for one day and do the actual mixing and baking the next day. This seems a superior plan for the life of the average women to that of trying to push the whole operation through in the same day.

Unless in a household where the heavy traditional old-fashioned plum mydding is a must low.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

PROTECTING yourself against an opponent's suit being a six-carder is not good bridge if you can make your contract safe in case it is still longer. Unless you have definite proof to the contrary, there is always the chance that such may be the case. It is well to bear that in mind when ruffing the second or third round of a suit, especially if the last defender to play on the trick is the partner of the fellow whose bid or play had shown he held a rather extensive number of cards in the suit being trumped. In such a case, it is well to ruff with the nighest trump you can are.

West just went sailing along happily after the club K was led, seeing that his contract was a cinch. He won with the A, ruffed the club 6 with the heart 2, discarded a diamond on the spade A, ruffed the spade 4 with the heart 5 and was sure his contract was in the bag, with no possible losers except three in diamonds. The club 10 could be disposed of by ruffing, so he led it and put on dummy's heart 8.

Then came the blow. South over-ruffed with the 9. That, added to the sure three diamond losers, encompassed his defeat.

"Why, for Heaven's sake didn't you trump that with the queen?" asked his ladylike partner.

"Siriply because," he answered, "I didn't dream North would have so many clubs. I counted on him for six and he proved to have seven."

West could just as well have protected himself against the seven as the six he expected. He did not need the heart Q for a trump trick, as he had the other four honors. His debacle was a mere matter of sending a boy on a man's errand.

British politics in 1948.

Parliamentary battles between Labor and the Gonservative opposition were given added fury by the recognition that issues such as the government bills to nationalize the icon and steel industry and reduce the Lords' powers again will be debated before the votes within 18 months.

Labor strategists, led by Herb- aviation ert Morrison, ceputy prime min-ister, contended that their nationalization policies, social security held in 29 constituencies where legislation now in force and their Labor elected a member in 1945, long-range economic planning but a defeat for the government mean a better Britain for the ordinary man and woman.

The Conservatives continued to criticize Labor's interference with free enterprise and the continuance of innumerbale controls. But they save their blessing to social security measures passed by parliament and in policy "charters" made public proposals for progressive measures in industrial relations and agriculture.

The Labor administration headed by Prime Minister Attlee said that with the iron and steel nadonalization bill, passed by the Commons in November, it had implemented all the public own-ership promises given in the 1946 election campaign.

In face of Conservative statements that nationalization will disrupt Britain's economy, Labor leaders have asked their followers to go slow in demands for further socialization and allow,

Says Hollywood Gagging Critics

LONDON, Dec. 17.-(AP). Tom Driberg, Labor member of Parliament, accused the Hollywood film industry Wednesday night of trying "to gag and intimidate English critics."

Her employer, Lord Kemsley, and the National Union of Journalists contributed to a defence fund for her, and now, Driberg said, fellow critics who came to her aid are being threat-ened with legal actions.

"The extraordinary climax is that when some of her colleagues started a whip-round, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer weighed in with threats of libel action against them," Driberg said.

Three Trustees Re-elected At Millbrook

"As this movement against foxes has now become widespread and the red fox has no township or county boundaries, the logical action would seem to be for the county councils of southern Onlario to unite in asking the provincial government at its first session of the Legislature to declare a 12 months open season on the red fox in any year, and set aside funds to provide a bounty of $5 on each pelt," he said.

"We believe that with a Premier who is sympathetic to agriculture it would not be difficult to prove to the Legislature that the financial loss from foxes far outweighs the loss caused by wolves on which a $25 bounty is cheerfully paid."

"Losses from foxes are borne directly or indirectly by every one who produces, sells or consumes poultry. Since when have foxes become more important than peoplpe. Farmers of the district should see that the county council grape-vine becomes operative."

Say Millionaire Film Stars Thing Of Past

HOLLYWOOD, Dec 18 (AP)— The millionaire Hollywood sta-is a thing of the past.

This word comes from Bo Roo. who guides the financial destinies of many film pictures.

"Anyone who becomes a star in these times cannot hope to be a millionaire—unless he has phenomenal luck in his investments." Roos reported. "And ments," Roos reported. "And that is no matter how big a salary he gets."

Even though a star can't be-come a millionaire, he can sock away enough for a good life in come, said Roos, and that is his job.

Bo (pronounced Boo— it's an old Swedish name) is a stocky, round-faced man who made enough money in the Los Angeles real estate boom of the '20s to retire. Looking for something to do in 1933, he became business manager for Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, figuring that managers, then in the field did not have his know-how about real estate. No mere manager is he; his own investments top those of his stars.

What does he do for stars? "First, we take three or four months to survey the star's fin-ancial structure. Then we try to get his living expenses down. Usually a star is spending $2,000 a month when he should be spending about $1,000. But that is not because stars are spend. is not because stars are spend-thrifts. Living is automatically Roos has an axe to grind — about income taxes on film stays. "Oil men and farmers are given consideration by the Treasury Department; why not the movie Christmas party. Each child,

Rubbing Shoulders In Our

Post Office The quaint edifice which is Peterborough's Post Office becomes something of a wrestling box each Christmas season. People queue in front of the wickets as gently as possible, but the trouble is that there are so many queues in such little space that the fifth person in any one queue finds himself the fifth in a dozen and the centre of a mob. The lobby is not big enough. It may accommodate the few who are mailing letters of condolence at this time, but not the thousands who are sending off greeting cards by the score and parcels by the

The tussle in the lobby must be prissy stuff in comparison with the sparring that goes on behind the wickets. People out front are probably as quiet and wellmannered as they are out of sympathy for the staff at the back, who are trying to do a city's posting business in a village hen-house. The Peterborough Post Office was built when the city had a population of 12,000. Now the population is 36,000. Those figures, and not merely the Christmas rush, are the proof that Peterborough needs a new Post Office. Our Customs House, of the same vintage, is also inadequate for the business it now handles. When are we to get the new Federal building to house post office and customs? There has been talk about it since the days when the oldest horse in Peterborough was a colt. It is time Peterborough made a real hullabaloo in Ottawa about its need. We should have now at least a site, the plans, and a promise to build as soon as labour conditions and material permit.

Canadian Power In Minerals

Last Saturday we discussed in these columns the vast iron deposits in Labrador and Ungava, and their exploitation. It is not easy to estimate the importance of this development to the economy and national power of Canada. If the Labrador deposits are, as many now believe, among the largest and richest in the world, and if by 1953 a minimum of ten million tons of iron is mined annually from them, Canada's importance in world trade and power politics will be

Armies may march on their stomachs, but they fight on and with steel. The U.S.A. was the greatest arsenal of de cracy in the recent war, but L. S. Hamaker of Republican Steel has remarked that Uncle Sam has fought his | may or may not be proper to our cuslast war with Mesabi (Minnesota) iron. Another war may have to be fought with Labrador iron.

It is not from iron alone that Canada's new world power is being derived. Nova Scotia has an estimated coal reserve of one billion tons-all excellent bituminous coal. Alberta has fifty coal areas, with reserves which make Cape Breton's minute by comparison. There are untold petroleum deposits, particularly in Alberta and the Territories. The richest and newest developing fields are Leduc. The Northwest Territories (Great Bear Lake vicinity) are among the world's principal sources of radium and uranium.

Four minerals: coal, iron, petroleum and pitchblende; the four most potent in times of war and uneasy peace. Canada has them in abundance—the three last in quantities so vast that all other nations can either fear, covet or admire the potential power we have in them. This country has already established its claim to an important share in world affairs through the effort of its armed forces in two wars, its food production, its national wealth, its external trade and the qualify of its people and government. In the harsh realities of international politics our importance as a world force is made inevitable by these minerals alone. They represent power for ourselves if we develop and use them, for others if we surrender them to outside interests or allow them to be seized and exploited by foreigners.

Iron, oil and uranium mean economic power. Economic power means political | break in the weather.

power. In this age of armoured fighting, of airplanes, of ocean vessels powered by oil, of atomic energy, they mean military power. It should be a major part of our domestic policy that the mineral deposits are mined, and not left fallow while we import each year 110 million dollars worth of petroleum (crude and refined). 120 million dollars worth of coal, and twice as much iron and steel in construction materials, machinery and appliances. It should be a major part of policy to see that these mineral resources and their exploitations do not fall into foreign hands. We do not want, nor should we intend to become an Irag. Our iron and oil and uranium should not be controlled by Washington, London, or New York, if only because Canada is a nation and should control its own destiny.

Encouragement For Conservatives

The Progressive Conservative victory in Digby-Annapolis-Kings is a triumph indeed. Since that seat was created in 1933 it was held by J. L. Ilsley who was popular in the constituency, and who had special claims upon the electors because of his fine record as Minister of Finance during the war. But the P.C. candidate, Mr. George Nowlan, received a plurality of votes.

Mr. Drew's aggressive leadership of the P.C. forces undoubtedly had much to do with the change. Bold, and at times downright pugnacious. Mr. Drew is giving his party the most alert leadership it has had since the time of Lord Bennett. If he himself makes a spectacular showing in the Carleton byelection his leadership will be well

Other factors had a bearing on the victory in Digby-Annapolis-Kings. The new leader of the Nova Scotia Conservatimes, Mr. Robert Stanfield, has thrown himself whole-heartedly into what appeared to be a hopeless task; his youth, energy and native wit have altered the complexion of Nova Scotia Conservatism from a deathly pallor to what is best described as a convalescent flush. And it must be said, too, that the attitude of the Liberal Prime Minister of Nova Scotia, Mr. Angus Macdonald, has confused and alarmed some of his supporters; in the Dominion-Provincial conference Mr. Macdonald allied himself with Mr. Drew and Mr. Duplessis, and his stand may have led many of his Liberals followers to support Mr. Drew, as a political crony of 'Angus L'. (whose standing in some quarters of Nova Scotia is more that of a Highland chieftain than that of a politician); undoubtedly other Liberals, less attached to Mr. Macdonald's person, voted Conservative to teach him a lesson.

This Conservative victory should warn the Liberal party that opposition in future elections will be better organized.

Ultra Vires, Intra Vires

The Supreme Court's decision on the margarine ban again brings into the news two Latin phrases which are of exceptional importance to all Canadians and basic to the structure of our country: ultra vires and intra vires. The former means "beyond one's power or authority", the latter "within one's authority". In Canada terms is almost entirely limited to matters which concern legislation which toms and principles.

The importance of the terms can be judged by reference to the American use of "constitutional" or "unconstitutional". The U.S.A. has a constitution, fixed, formal, and well-nigh irrevocable. Canada has a constitution not tied to a document, though the British North America Act of 1867 is an integral part of our national frame. The vires within and of Canada are, happily, far more important than any document. Having, like Britain, no fixed constitution, Canada has no strait-jacket outside the B.N.A. Act.

The constitution is made every day by our elected legislators. It was made seven centuries ago by Magna Charta. It has flowered from many branches, has roots imbedded in the history of British peoples and the struggles everywhere through countless ages for political freedom and personal liberty. Canada broadens politically from precedent, and it is good that our national framework is thus susceptible to change, yet anchored firmly in custom. A margarine ban in the U.S.A. could have been abolished only by constitutional amendments; in Canada our Supreme Court decides that it is ultra vires.

SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Turned my attention this afternoon to the repulsive job of wrapping a few Christmas parcels which must be sent away tomorrow if they are to arrive in time I am a messy wrapper on the brown-paper and-string level; I am utterly demoralized by tissue paper, and my Christmas parcels usually look like the debris of a children's party But mere tisue paper is no longer enough Modern Christmas wrapping employs such oddments as frosted pine cones, artificial snow, pleated paper, bells, sheet tin and gold leaf. In fact a really well-wrapped parcel is so beautiful that the handkerchief or pair of socks concealed within it is a painful anticlimax; this strengthens me in my belief that my way of wrapping is best. Any parcel of mine is so degraded in appearance that any-thing even moderately clean inside it comes as a delightful surprise. The wrapper's art is an engrossing one, but it must be kept in its MONDAY: Met a fellow today who is very fussy about the spoken word, and he was groaning that the racio provides little for persons of his kidney, although it serves those of musical taste very well. He was par-ticularly critical of the people who speak on the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts, and be-came quite wild because Milton Cross pronounces "Mignon" as though it were ion" and pronounces "Wilhelm" with an English instead of a German "W". He moaned also about the poor speech of the Opera singers who speak in the intervals, and who call a tune a "toon" and in other ways assault the sensitive ear. As a matter of fact I have often marvelled myself at the ability of many singers to divorce speech from song, though it seems plain enough that song is a kind of glorified speech. But then, my views on singing are unusual and unpopular, for I am always amazed by people wno announce that they cannot sing at all; it seems to me that anybody who can speak can sing, though they may not sing very well. There are even children who say that they cannot sing though for a child it should be as easy to sing as to spit. How did this cleavage between speech and song arise, I wonder?

TUESDAY: Driving near a railway siding this morning I beneld a signt of grim beauty-a gondora loaded with pones on meir way to a g.ue factory. The load was heaped high and me rip-cages, spines and skulls of horses and cattle were seen in silhouette against a winter sky. Skeletons of all kinds have a beauty of meir own; to me a house hair-built, or a tail building which is still in the steer-structure stage, is a more pleasing object than the same building completed Way skeletons are considered frightening objecis i nave no idea; most people would be tar nangsomer without their flesh than with it and I think this holds true of animals, as weil ... And yet I will admit that there was an air of austerity about this load for the pone-yard. It was a gigantic reminder of our mortanty, and if Sir Thomas Browne had been riging in the car with me he would no doubt have favoured me with a few rolling periods on the subject. And although the pones in themseives were beautiful there was something depressing about the thought that they would end, in all probability, as ten-cent bottles of mucilage, and that vile substance which bookbinders use so freely in their trade.

I wonder now many love-crazed people there really are? As I walk through the streets, what portion of the peopie i meet are in this distressing and dangerous condition? Quite a few, it appears. But from my newspaper reading I can make a tew deductions about them. Most love-crazed people appear to live in boarding-nouses, and a majoraly of them earn less than $2,000 a a usual tung, and none of them toil under tne purden or a mignty intellect. But they are great lovers, and very handy with knives, pistols, and plunt instruments. Very few of them have sleady jobs, and not many of them belong to the skilled trades. They do not eat regularly. (It is a curious fact that most of tnem nave been grabbing a snack-a ham burger and a soft arink or something of that king-within three hours before they commi murder.) Their physical health is good, but they tend to be puny above the eyebrows. They are under 35. They need a good hobby and a larger circle of female acquaintance.

BOARD OF HEALTH AND BOARD OF EDUCATION

Sir: On Nov. 12, 1948, there appeared in the local daily press a report to the effect that the Board of Education, on report of its Health Committee, had rejected the proposed plan for the amalgamation of its health services with the Board of Health.

It was further reported that, if such an amalgamation were to take place, "It was feared the present standard would suffer".

Here's a charm

To alarm

At the monthly meeting of the Board of Health held Nov. 15, 1948, a letter was read from the secretary-treasurer of the Board of Education stating that the Board had decided to postpone indefinitely the signing of the agreement with the City Council and the Board of Health regarding the school health services

As this matter pertains to the Public Health, the Board of Health believes it to be advisable to issue this statement.

In the past there have been numerous attempts to amalagamate the two health services-always at the instigation of the Department of Health — always unsuccessful. However, in March, 1947, at the invitation of the Board of Education, their Health Committee met with members of the Board of Health to discuss this matter. At this meeting the Medical Officer of Health was requeste to draw up an outline of a proposed unified health service. This was done and the outline was presented to a similar joint meeting held early in April, 1947. The plan in general was accepted by all concerned, and unsatisfactory details were decided upon after further discussions.

With both Boards in agreement members representing these bodies met with members of the City Council in July, 1947, and the Board of Education was asked to prepare formal agreement to unify the health ser-

However, it was not until Setember, 1948, that the Board of Health received a copy of this agreement. It was studied and found acceptable. The Board of Education was advised of this and asked that the appropriate officers sign the document. It was then that the Board of Health was advised that the Board of Education had decided to postpone indefinitely the signing of this agreement.

The Board of Health regrets this action as

A Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version) All scripture is given by inspiration of God for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, throughly furnished unto all good works. (II Tim. 3: 16, 17.)

For we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eyewitnesses of his majesty....

We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in your hearts: knowing this first, that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation. For the prophecy not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. (II Pet. 1: 16, 19-21.)

And I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud: and a rainbow was upon his head, and his face was as it were the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire: and he had in his hand a little book open: and he set his right foot upon the sea, and his left foot on the earth, and cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth ...

And I went unto the angel, and said unto him, Give me the little book. And he said unto me, Take it, and eat it up; and it shall make thy belly bitter, but it shall be in thy mouth sweet as honey. (Rev. 10: 1-3, 9.)

it is felt that a generalized health service, which is the present day accepted method would benefit the health of the public. The Department of Health staff are qualified and desirous of giving the best and most economical service to the citizens of Peterborough. It is hoped that the amalgamation will not be postponed indefinitely but will be accomplished without further delay to the benefit and advantage of all.

MILK PRODUCERS "REIGN OF TERROR" AT AN END

Sir: Jim Gifford's squawk in your paper tonight regarding the lifting of the oleomar-garine ban, is just a big laugh. If the Ontario Cream Producers can't exist other than under a monopoly it is time they smartened up or went into some other business. Financial Post of December 18, sums this situation up admirably: "As The Financial Post has pointed out again and again, there has never been the slightest excuse for any ban. It constituted the rankest kind of discrimination against millions of citizens and favored a small pro-ducing group that in recent years has been unable to supply a market over which they had absolute control."

It is just about time that the consumers in this country got a break. Personally I am delighted that the "reign of terror" milk producers in Ottawa is at an end.

According to one tradition these wise men, or Magi, were named Gaspar, Melchior and Balthazar. In the east of that time, such perfumes and incenses as myrrh and frankincense were, like spices, as precious as gold —luxuries only for the rich and oyalty. But the gifts also had an intentional symbolism: gold was the emblem of royalty; frankincense a token of divinity, and myrrh was a prophetic al-lusion to the persecution unto death which awaited the Man of

It was not just the Jews of the homeland who waited hope-fully for the Messiah promised by the prophet Isaiah. The people of that region were most like the Jews, in religion, of all nations in the world. They believed in one God, they had no idols, they wor-shipped light as the best symbol of God. Hence their affinity with the Jews in their expectations our. Hence the significance they mmediately attached to the ap pearance of the phenomenal star. been for a long time diffused through the West. (Virgil says a child of heaven was looked for, who would restore the golden age and take away sin.) So the hope, had fer-mented in the minds of all men, not just Jews alone, and they were ready to welcome Jesus as the Christ who had come in accordance with their expectations.

So we learn from the death-less story chronicled by Matthew. Matthew was not one of the scribes or professional writduties at Capernaum; these were exacted from persons and goods crossing the Sea of Galilee, and from travelers and commerce on the high road to Damascus. Matthew must have been a man posts as tax collectors have never been given to humble men by any politicians since antiquity He certainly was a man of wealth, for we know he made a great feast in his own house, to introduce his former associates and friends to Jesus. His name was originally Levi; Matthew probably was adopted as his new name when Jesus converted and name when Jesus converted and baptized him.

Matthew is mentioned by name after the Resurrection,

HUMMING BIRDS riding pick-a-back on the great Canada Geese did a little messenger work for Santa Claus during the last week. These humming birds are always kept late in the northern sections for emergency purposes by the bewhiskered gentlemen, and this year it was their job to bring a message to the pugwuzzies. It seems Santa was a bit worried over the scarcity of snow, so he sent a note to the pugwuzzies to stand by for possible duty. If the snow doesn't come, then the toys, all labelled and packed in bags will be dropped by parachute from Santa's huge aeroplane. The pugwuzzles, hard-working but invisible little fellows, will then take over and see to it that each boy and girl gets gifts. Even the chicadees are helping, because they act as scouts for the pugwuzzies. That is why these frisky birds are often found near the doors of farm homes. They are listening to find out if small children live there.

PUGWUZZIES WELCOME that assignment. They can do it so well, and not since 1923, the year of the green Christmas have they had a chance to carry toys. They are powerfully built wee people, and they can scamper down chimneys, or even squeeze through keyholes and unlock doors. This year they have another fairly big job too, because the snowshoe rabbits and the jack-rabbits are turning white, before the snow is on the ground. This makes the rabbits an easy target for the hunters, and because the rabbit population has been greatly reduced by foxes, hawks, and hunters, the balance must be given extra protection. The pugwuzzies stampede the rabbits whenever a hunter comes near, and they keep on prodding the jumpers, until they have scampered into a safe hiding place. The pugwuzzies often make the hounds bump their heads against the rail fences, and then the hounds get dizzy and run in circles, or even wind up in a farmer's barnyard instead of deep in the cedar and tarmarack swamps. Certainly these pugwuzzies are busy fellows at this time of year.

IT'S TOO BAD some of these city women can't get the pugwuzzies to help them pick out Christmas gifts for the husbands. I saw one wife buying a level-wind fishing reel this week, and I am sure her hubby wants a fly-casting reel. Another was buying some 100 grain cartridges for a 348 Winchester rifle. Her husband wants 250 grain for deer hunting and thinks the 100 grain load is too light. But what can these hubbies do, when the fair ones go right on buying without first cross-examining the prisoners. There is a wide range of practical and beautiful gifts A steel fishing rod, like the "Aristocrat", which is made in Galt, is an ideal gift. Every angler has a favorite plug bait, and he can't have too many of these. It might be a Lucky Strike red and white jointed, or a pikle minnow, or a river runt, or perhaps a Hawaiian wiggler. All are available and nicely boxed for Christmas. Then too there are plastic containers for fly fishermen, with a few cards of flies thrown in. Dealers will be glad to discuss fishing lines too, and a wife can't go wrong on a good fishing line.

THERE ARE CARTRIDGE VESTS which are cheap and always valued by the duck hunter and rabbit hunter. A box of shotgun shells, the right gauge and with the right size shot is another inexpensive gift. Or perhaps you want to blow the bankroll and get him a heavy parka or hunting coat, or maybe a pair of waders. These latter are not too expensive. A pump gun or a heavy calibre deer rifle is difficult to obtain. On the other hand. Johnson outboard motors are in good supply, and the new motor embodying several completely new and topnotch features would gladden the heart of any fisherman, or even the fellow who likes cruising the lakes and rivers. A five-cell flashlight, haversack, camp axe, hunting knife, hunting boots, five-buckle galoshes, a good jack-knife, or a telescope sight are all items that the sportsman will welcome. When a woman walks into a sporting goods store, and suddenly realizes that if her hubby had his way, he would have one of everything in the store then she can't go far wrong in her buying.

MUSKIE FISHERMEN, and particularly many Americans will regret to hear that a huge muskie, estimated to weigh 70 pounds was fond floating in the Otonabee river this week. "Bud" Collins saw a dog eating the carcass, and salvaged it. He measured what was left and the fish was 60 inches long, minus the tail. Adding five inches at least for the tail, and the fishermen can get a good idea how large this old bruiser was. The fish was found in the stretch of the Otonabee river between the Waterworks dam and the Auburn dam at the city limits. This fish must have been at least 50 years old, and probably died of oldage or else some injury. Collins has the head mounted and one wouldn't have any trouble shoving a loaf of bread between the laws. It is strange to think that five generations of anglers fish ed that part of the Otonabee and still the old battler survived. What a trophy it would have made, and perhaps it would have set a new world record. Some years ago, a maskinonge weighing 64½ pounds was caught at Favin, Wisconsin, but this is not recognized as a world record.

IF MEMORY SERVES ME right, Percy Haver, Detroit, holds the world record with a 61½ pound muskie caught in Eagle lake, Ontario, If I am wrong surely some kind fellow among the Outdoor in April, aged 69, of what is Writers will use the spurs, The largest maskinonge caught in Kawartha waters, strangely enough, came from that same stretch of river. It was caught by the late Tommy Tobin more than 20 years ago, and weighed 44 lbs. For many years the picture of this fish hung in Jim Lewis' barber shop on Hunter St. Undoubtedly that quarter mile stretch of water is ideal for muskles. It is fed by two streams, and Lord by the prophet, saying, has heavy weed and reed beds. Hundreds of maskinonge have been "Out of Egypt Mave I called my caught there in recent years. I get a chuckle, and include myself in it too, when I recall the number of sportsmen who have driven miles and miles seeking a record-breaking fish. All the time that old codger was taking it easy in some deep hole, or along the big weed shepherds knocked upon the stribes or professional writers. The shepherd with the scribes or professional writers. The shepherd with the collection of taxes and customs deeper.

> A HOSPITAL is never important to the average person until he or she becomes ill suddenly. Then it becomes terribly important. Everyone must jump and run, have everything just right, including the room temperature. If it isn't that way then the sick man or the sick woman gets a persecution complex and claims the world and everyone in it is down on them. Many hundreds of healthy people, now living in Canada will be smitten by tuberculosis before 1949 is over. It will strike like a thief in the night, and immediately their entire pattern of living will change. It costs thousands of dollars to maintain these sanatoria for T.B. patients. The end of the year is near, and most people are thinking of Christmas and how much income tax they will have to pay. A donation to the T.B. seal campaign, would be an ideal Christmas gesture, and will help the income tax problem too. Remember next year, you might be one who will be benefitting from the T.B. seal campaign.

THE FIRST BIG winter diamond deal, consummated at the major league meetings in Chicago involved Fred Sanford (above), St. Louis Browns pitcher, who will go to the New York Yankees with Roy Partee, a catcher, in exchange for $100,000 and three players. The deal baffles the outside experts in that Sanford's great distinction for the past season is that he lost more games than any other pitcher in the American league—21 losses against a dozen wins.

Playing for 20 years with Boston Bruins in the NHL, he became one of the all-time stars both as a forward

Johnny Fitzgerald of the Tely talked to him lately in Boston and Dit went into considerable detail on hockey in the days of Lionel Conacher, Howie Morenz, Eddie Shore and other oldtimers, as well as coming right up to date. In some ways, he feels present-day puck-ists are more mentally alert and speedier than those of a decade or more ago.

taking three straight COSSA titles. He is described as 19 years old, paper. Good going, fellows.

But he points out: "Present players, I feel, would not be able to empete with the stars and style of the onside pass days. Those men were big, rough and capable. They had all the necessary strong points of a good hockey player, and those who had speed could have advanced as stars under any rules. Today I don't think you need the same polish to be an NHL player. A good skater today can score a fair number of goals but the majority of them will be from goalmouth scrambles. This, of course, is the result of forechecking and forechecking in turn has made the game tougher."

other, with not much centre action. He says a star like Frank Nighbor with his sweeping pokecheck would be lost today, as he'd be beaten on the forward pass or the chip-shot pass by fast-stepping forwards. The Kid Line came along to introduce chip-shot passes that would be a foot off the ice, and that helped to outdate the flat pass. Dit dispels the idea that there isn't much good stick-handling seen today, though he says it may not look as fancy as in the old days even if just as effective. Here's how he explains:

"After all, in my early playing days, an attacker had until centre ice to be doing fancy things with the puck. Now, a kid picks up the puck back of his own goal and by the time he's at his blue line he's had to pass at least two players and get bumped, grabbed, checked and whatnot. But the majority of them manage to get that puck up the ice by carrying it. So, I would say that our present-day player must have pretty good stickhandling ability. Today, someone is on your tail all the time, so that I do feel our kids have to be thinking faster all the time. Many stars of the past would be stars today. They had what I look for in a player—size, strong skaters, good shots with a good eye, desire and the ability to eat, sleep and play with others. Good team men, in other words."

There'll be some local puck fans at the Civic Arena this winter the haven't seen hockey as it's played today. They quit going to games when our rink became a dance hall. Wouldn't go out of town for "home" games, but will probably become regular followers again. They'll see faster hockey than in the pre-war days with more goals scored. Less bodychecking but plenty of forechecking. Plenty of subbing as the pace is kept up with players flying from end to end, forward passing taking the puck in a twinkling from one end zone to the other. Scrambles before the goals frequently. Hockey that is rather ragged but real fast. Pitching horseshoes. And they'll like it—or, if not, they'll be in the minority.

Men's basketball goes tonight in the Collegiate, Marines "A" gainst the "Y" Wonders at seven, followed by Lindsay vs. the Marines "B" bunch. Girls held forth at the YW last eve, with the first fray being somewhat one-sided as Neill's rolled to a 31-10 triumph o'er the CGE-ers. The Neill's squad looked good and were sparked on the attack by Jean Vass. Second scrap was a honey, going into overtime before Nurses nudged out a 24-22 verdict. Bev Pringle, Anita Davis and S. Wilkinson supplied their punch while the Collis colleens had their scoring pretty well spread around. 'Twas the best battle so far this season.

The Fighting Parsons took on the Fighting Glens and showed them a few new tactics on the cooca mat, marking up the scores 20-5, 10-9. The Glens then advanced to the treasury to try and get their money back but old money bags checked them out in the first 18-3. This got the Glens really on their metal and they showed there was still fight in the old gang as they took the Treasurers for 12-8.

The Treasurers also went after raising a loan from the Ind. Motor squad and managed to squeeze a little in the first encounter with interest on the 9-8 colnt but got an electric shock in the second attempt, getting knocked over 11-9.

Canadian Skater Has Pet Superstitions

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—(CP)— Superstition plays a big part in Barbara Ann Scott's ability to skate. At least so she says, though she thinks superstitions

"I can't skate at all unless I put on my left boot first!" she confided as she was trying on her boots just before an early-morning rehearsal at the Roxy Theatre. "Have you ever tried putting on your right boot first?" she was asked. "No," the pretty Ottawa skater replied, "but I just know I couldn't skate if I did!"

Despite that quirk, Barbara Ann thinks most superstitions are silly. Things like expecting seven-years bad luck for break-ing a mirror or an argument if you spill salt, "they're just non-sense."

"How about the number 13?"
the world champion was asked.
"Why that's my lucky number.
I've drawn that number in competition so often I think it's a lucky one for me.

Nothing Unlucky in 13

Nothing Unlucky in 13

"For that matter, when the Minto Skating Club of Ottawa gave me a gold pin fashioned like a skate, they had 13 diamonds set in it I don't think there's anything unlucky about 13?

The world figure-skating champion, who makes her professional debut early next week, admits to another little superstition. "I knock on wood when someone asks me about something that has never happened to me," she

"The other day when the edi-tors of high school newspapers were interviewing me, someone asked if I had ever fallen in com-petition. Before I answered that I had not, I knocked on the wooden table in front of me."

A red stake-body truck was described by Ralph Mackie, 499 McDonnel St., as the vehicle that early Friday evening struck his car on Brown St., and then drove away. Damage was estimated at $45. In the preparation of the Peterborough plan, a model was studied with five or six others. The annuities branch of the federal department was also consuited, and the local plan became a composite of the most desirable features that were crystallized from all that information.

It is also a contribute would have been two calls for Santa Claus. One of the cases proved to be a stickler for the operator. The child wished to know if St. Nick liked milk or beer. both councils. Brantford estimates at $30,000 the annual cost to the municipalthe annual cost to the municipality of the pensions it is providing, and Oshawa something in excess of $20,000. The cost to Peterborough is between those figures, about $24,000 a year.

The Peterborough plan went into effect May 1 this year. City Treasurer E. A. Danby of Oshawa informed his council this week that the plan derives its authority

At the request of the chairman of the finance committee, the Peterbor-ough plan has been fully studied, and it is sound in all particulars The Minister of Municipal Affairs, Hon. G. H. Dunbar, has given his approval to this same plan for Brantford. Consequently we are now in a position to proceed."

Mr. Danby stressed a feature of the plan, which, as it was computed by City Clerk Outram an important consideration in convincing the local council and vinning their approval. It refers to the provision for past services apart from future services.

Same Explanation Mr. Danby explains it in much the same manner as did Mr. Out-ram when the plan was being discussed by the council of Peter-borough. The Oshawa treasurer said to his council: "Under the original plan we would have been required to pay an addibeen required to pay an additional $32,000 a year for 10 years for past services, in order to set up a capital fund to take care of the past services of employees who have been longest in the Annual cost for past services will gradually increase for a num-ber of years, and will then recede, eventually disappearing from the previsions of the plan whose settled financing comes into effect. The scope of the plan embraces board of works employees, firemen, policemen, city hall staff and various others in the employment of the city.

The Coventry Nativity Play is becoming a regular Christman feature at St. George's Church, where, for the third year in succession, Robertson Davies' adaptation was presented by St. George's Players Guild on Friday. There will be performances today, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

A medieval play, intended to be performed in church, the Coventry Nativity Play lends itself well to interpretation in the compact setting of a small church. Isaiah, portrayed by Lorne Mitchell, is the first biblical character to hannounce the pending birth of Christ. His prophesy is followed by the appearance of Gabrial, George Bouck, who appears above the screened altar to tell the Virgin Mary, Elizabeth Mitchell, that she will bear the son of God. Good Neighbourhood Important The development and fate of many neighbourhoods is to a large degree in the hands of God but there are indications which should give you a key as to what to expect. One of these is the original price of the lot.

Very cheap land has some reason for being cheap. It has been made cheap to give it an attractiveness which it does not otherwise have. There is a good rule of thumb to remember in the buying of building sites. Do not pay more than 20 per cent of the value of your completed property for a lot... and by the same tok-

In showing the entertainment film, larger centres have an advantage, due to high cost of equipment and films, but some local pictures are good. Many films give a distorted view of life, and there are evidences of advertising of drinking and other vices, which have an injurious effect on young people, the group decided. Animal pictures are popular. Village and country children as a whole attend movies only with parents, who try to see the best pictures available

Educational films are shown in churches, schools, at meetings, and under the sponsorship of de-partments of agriculture, and game and fisheries. It was suggested that there should be more such films for adults.

More Canadians Observe 48 Boxing Day

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a mar-ried woman and the mother of five children. We are very poor, so I do all cf my own work and and keep the children interested

There is no comparison between the work of a poor mother and father, but when your husband complains that you have it easier than he does, it isn't that he real-ly thinks so, or that he begrudges the labor he does for his family. He is only making a bid for sym-pathy. He is calling your attention task is easier than his.

It makes me very unhappy as I am worn out working for his benefit. Don't you think that the mother of a large, poor family works as hard as the father does?

In fact, she could not exist if it were not for her family and friends.

The thing for you and her family to do is to have a real plain talk with her and tell her this, Also, tell her that she must get busy now and support her child. If she does not know how to do any work, she must fit herself to follow some gainful occupation. Work is the only panacea for grief, and especially is it the morbid sentimentality in which morbid sentimentality in which your friend is indulging herself.

For Sunday, December 19

Sunday's horoscope accents the happy combination of the spirit-ual, idealistic, romantic and ma-teral. Under such exceptional stimul it is probable that certain fantastic dreams and aspirations might be expected to "come true". Social and business affiliations may promote pleasant relations through tact, finesse and subtle operations or intriguing manipu-lation. Those whose birthday it is may be ready for a year of the in-triguing, uncommon and idealistic rather than the gross and commonplace. Shrewd and clever techniques, holding the far vision, could ultimately light up a sur-prise at the end of the rainbow.

A child born on this day, while being bounteously equipped with ideal and intangible aspirations, also could attract cooperation and back to her. What can her family auccess through tact, finesse or exceptional creative talents.

New Korda Film Produces Many Red Faces

By JAMES McCOOK.

LONDON, Dec. 18 — (CP). —
The reddest skies, tunics, tartans—and faces—ever seen in the movie world are part of the British production, "Bonnie Prince Charlie."

After months of publicity and reports of extras dashing about the Highland hills the film was screened in London, to be greeted icily by critics.

Sir Alexander Korda, the producer, was driven to reply

Sir Alexander Korda, the producer, was driven to reply through large posters that London critics had written about the film "not with a pen but with a hatchet." He said the Scottish critics—who should be the best judges—had found the film "fine and exciting."

This did not take into account the Glasgow Herald. It called the film about the romantic Prince of the 1745 Rebellion "a concentration of inspired hokum." The more friendly Edinburgh Scotsman found the start "almost unbelievably bad" although later parts were more acceptable.

Said Biggest In History

By The Canadian Press.

Shopkeepers are rubbing their hands and shoppers are rubbing their bruises. And the worst is still ahead.

In one Toronto store there was set aside "a shop for men filled with gifts for women. (No women allowed.)"

It shows also that the average Canadian shopper is going to be rushing at the last moment.

Reasons cited: Warm weather in the East, and the slow appear-ance of Christmas spirit. Several stores, aware that the shoppers would take their own good time, had abandoned their annual "shop early" propaganda. But heavily-burdened transit systems pleaded with shoppers to get cracking.

Department stores — larges, dispensers of Christmas gifts — report shoppers are spending more money this year than ever before. But, unlike in the war years, they aren't taking just what they can get. As one store executive put it: "They are shopping, selecting."

Luxury items are on the wane as favorite gifts and the exclus-ive specialty shops are largely still waiting for business. Canada this year are giving practical gifts.

The male of the family can expect an interesting variety of gifts. Some of them are "the old chestnuts—ties and shirts," toiletries, pipes and tobaccos, radios and watches.

Most popular gifts for the gals are lingerie, sweaters, house-coats, cosmetics, purses, and home furnishings. Jewellery is in less demand.

HAVING doubled an opponent's opening and heard a well-fitting response from your partner, it is encumbent upon you to proceed gingerly until you know whether his hand is valueless or not. But if the second opponent had interjected a bid after your double, and your partner nevertheless had bid, you should know your associate has a hand of some value. He has made a free bid. If your own hand is such then that you know the side has enough for a game or better, you should on your next turn either bid as high as the combined strength justifies or else put a force on the side by making either a jump of one more than necessary or a cue-bid of an opponent's suit.

to him as if South had made an extremely shaded double and was happy enough to reach out for a part-score. South was distressed by North's pass of the 2-Spades when he saw his partner take all except the opening trick, in clubs. But he should not have been. North, however, had every reason for being ready to explode, when he saw that terrific dummy—a term which this time could well be applied to the Molder as well as to the cards.

South had a number of better bids available when the call came to him on the second round. He could have shot the works with an immediate 6-Spades, or invited slam with a simple 3-Spades. Or he could have cue-bid hearts if he felt he wanted to feoi around a while. Or he could have Blackwooded with 4-No Trumps if he wanted to hear about North's aces. Or, if his pair used 3-Spades as a sure force to game, he might have tried that. What he actually did was about the only wrong thing you can think of.

your informative double with a jump to 2-No Trumps, you then bid three in a five-card suit and he calls 3-No Trumps, should you then show another and lowerranking five-carder at the level of four?

Shell Plant Destroyed Flames

VALCARTIER, Que., Dec. 20-(CP) - The shell-manufacturing plant of the multi-million-dollar Canadian arsenal, a sprawling 1,000 foot long building with sevreal annexes linked by corridors, was written off as a "complete loss" by tiremen today after a spectacular fire that burned over 24 hours and left the plant a mass of rubble and molten metal.

Damage, including new machiery and recent alterations to the munitions plant, was unofficially estimated at close to $1,000,000.

No one was injured as the regular army fire brigade assisted by a crew of 15 Quebec city firemen battled the blaze.

The fire broke out at 10:15 Sat-urday night. Although its cause was not known it was believed flames started in the laboratories of the plant.

Firemen reported that heat about the area was so intense that some metal underground pipes feeding eight water jets burst and forced fire crews to seek water elsewhere.

Th area covered by the flames was so large that firemen moved from one section to another in

French Return Village To Reds

BERLIN, Dec. 20 -(AP)-A lonely rural policeman watch today over the tiny village of Stolpe, which France is returning to Russia.

The west Berlin police department said the policeman would remain in the village until he was notified of the imminent arrival of a Russian occupation force. But, the department added, the latest information indicated the return of Stolpe might not be for-mally completed until Jan. 3. The frightened village then will move behind the Iron Curtain. Stople, adjacent to the French sector of Berlin, has a population of less than 1,000, most of them farmers. It was given to the French by the Russians in Oc-tober, 1945, so the French could build an airfield there. The field never was built. The Tegel airfield, inside the French sector, was completely last month for use by Allied air lift planes.

The French, therefore, an-nounced Stolpe was being returned to the Russians. A French com-munique said since an airport had not been built the village's transfer to the French "became de of purpose."

The French tricolor was hauled down Sunday.

The villagers, who turned out an impressive anti-Communist vote in the Berlin elections two weeks ago, waited fearfully be-hind bolted doors for the Russians

A Russian demand for return of the village followed French action last Thursday in dynamiting two sian-controlled radio Berlin near police arrested a man and wo-man, Mrs. Florence Clark, 44, Mc-Gregor St., and Raymond Norris, 20, Albert St., Sunday, on charges of robbery with assault.

Oshawa Couple Arrested For Robbery

The charges arose out of a severe beating given Peter Proskin, 60, of 31 Elgin St. E., who stumbled into a restaurant at the city's eastern limits at 3 a.m. Saturday. Proskin, whose face was covered with blood and who seemed dazed at the time, later told police he had been beaten up after a drink-

When they got out of the cab, he said, he was beaten about the head and face and left in the ditch. The cab had already left, and police say the other man, whose name was not released, was not involved in the fracas. Proskin's arm was badly bruised and he had facial cuts. It is understood he was beaten with a blunt instrument.

The arrest climaxed an extensive investigation by Provincial Constables Harry Kift and Lorne Galbraith, assisted by Inspector W. Dawn of Oshawa city police. Bail was set at $3,000 for each of the two accused.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 20-CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 20— (ENS)—Howard Wilson and Ar-thur Collette, representing tenants of Wartime Housing Ltd., on Flursday night petitioned the lown council to reconsider rais-ing of their rents They said that $3 a month was "a drastic in-prease" and that Wartime Hous-ing had notified the renters that the town's action in asking for more taxes was the sole cause of whe increase.

Councillor Kingston said that, for four-roomed house, construct-ed by Wartime Housing, the town and by warring housing, the town had received $24 a year rent. He said that depenture interest alone would make up this amount and that the town would not receive a dollar for snow ploughing, garbage collection, fire protection nd other services.

He explained that the original contract was signed before an added expense of $13,000 for fill was paid by the town He pointed put that if the town were collecting taxes on a $1,200 assessment on each house instead of rent the income would be equal to the original $24 rent plus the $3 a month increase. th increase.

After discussion it was moved that the incoming council be asked to deal with the matter.

Spy Hunt, U.S. Style

Some of the severest critics of the manner in which Canada's spy hunt was conducted a few years ago may now be inclined to think it preferable to the conduct of a similar investigation which has been proceeding for some time in the United States. They may, of course, like their spy hunts to be a combination of cloak and dagger, Mother Goose, domestic politics and inexplicable inactivity by federal police. If they do, then the proceedings at Washington should please them immensely.

The case began simply enough. Mr. Whittaker Chambers, Time Magazine editor, said Mr. Alger Hiss, one-time State Department employee, was or had been a Communist and had engaged in. treasonable activities. Mr. Hiss said Mr. Chambers was guilty of a "terminological inexactitude" and Mr. Chambers said "you're another". The U.S. House of Representatives Un-American Activities Committee probed and pried. The Federal Bureau of Investigation, the normal investigating agent in treason charges. stood silently aside, and the U.S. Justice Department handed out a bit of doubletalk which must rank near the top, even for bureaucrats. It said there would be no use going before a grand jury because the evidence they had failed to show which man, "if either", was

Then there was the journey at mid-night to Mr. Chambers' farm, where microfilm copies of important state documents were found where Peter the pumpkin-eater parked his wife. Nothing was said about why Mr. Chambers had concealed this evidence for so long. By this time the Justice Department had capped its statement regarding lack of evidence by announcing that the whole thing was "too hot" to discuss. It seemed to many observers that the hottest part of the entire affair was the spot occupied by Attorney-General Thomas Clark, and President Truman may have been attempting to cool things off for his lieutenant when he reiterated his belief that the spy hunt was just a "red herring" drawn across his political trail by the Republicans. Then a federal grand jury indicted Mr. Hiss on two counts of perjury concerning the denial that either he or his wife h over any government documents to Mr. Chambers.

That seemed to clarify the issue, but the Justice Department has now charged that an "amateur" investigator working for the Un-American Affairs Committee "ruined" some of the microfilm evidence, and may therefore have wrecked any chance of convicting Mr. Hiss and others who may be indicted. If only there had been a beautiful and slinky female spy involved somewhere along the line, the affair would sound precisely like a yarn of international intrigue written by an author not too concerned with logic and firmly convinced of the gullibility of his readers.

A Crusading Novelist

Robert Briffault died last week at the age of 72. For twenty years he was widely known as the writer of Europa, Europa in Limbo and a handful of other novels which were characterized by an unusually ornate style, a great display of learning, stimulating thought, emotion, scenes of powerful erotic quality and that combination of a large group of characters and shifting scene which critics sometimes call "a broad canvas". With these attractions there were obvious defects; his plots were poor and clumsy, and his characters rarely came to life.

It is doubtful if Briffault ever meant to entertain by his works. He was a man with a message, and that message was that capitalism was rotten and that only some great world revolution (for a time It seemed to be a communist revolution) could bring peace to the world. He liked to write about people of wealth and social prestige and he liked to describe in detail their habits and diseases. He was himself an able physician and an anthropologist of reputation, and he could do so in a most interesting manner.

Like many men who know a great deal. Briffault sometimes pretended to know more than he really did. The value of his books was offset by their pretensions. And his belief that the British Empire was "the monstrous instigator and abettor of every assassination of humanity" coloured his books. A man with a bee in his bonnet like that cannot hope to escape criticism and dislike. He was a man of violent hatreds, disordered intellect, and great talents.

Our Polish Veterans

More than two years ago the original group of 2,500 Polish war veterans were admitted to Canada. Later 1,500 other Polish soldiers came on the same terms. The arrangement, administered by the Department of Labour (and not the Immigration Branch) was that the men were to work on farms for two years. The farmers agreed to provide them with living accommodation and pay them the current rates. At the end of two years consideration would be given to allowing these Poles to stay in Canada, and take whatever work they wished, and to become Canadian citizens

The two years have passed for the original group. These men, all single and under 32 years of age when they arrived, have done their work well. This was acknowledged at the recent round-table discussions by farm and labour representatives at Ottawa. They are now free to seek employment best suited to their individual training and talents. The Winnipeg Free Press suggests that the granting of citizenship to these veterans might be speeded up, and reminds us that these men all fought with the Polish Second Corps on active service in Italy. They were often fighting side by side with Canadians, and were occasionally under Canadian command.

After the war, Polish soldiers who had fought in British armies and did not wish to return to Russian-dominated Poland, were offered immediate British citizenship. Many of the Poles accepted the offer, 4,527 preferred to come to Canada. The Canadian Citizenship Act entitles aliens who joined the Canadian armed forces to apply for citizenship after one year's residence in Canada. Since the Poles maintained their identity as Polish soldiers, they are not officially entitled to this special treatment. They are in the same category as other aliens and must have five years' residence in Canada before they can become Canadians.

We think that the Polish veterans should be allowed citizenship rights sooner than in five years. Most of them are now people without a country; with few exceptions they have worked well on our farms; they fought valiantly with Canadians in Italy; they are generally deserving of our help and the privileges Canadian citizenship gives.

A Time For Special Precaution

Up to the first of December this year 672 people were killed on the highways of Ontario-an increase of five over the total for the same period last year, the Minister of Highways, the Hon. George Doucett, has appealed to the people of Ontario to use special care in driving at this season, and we are happy to back Mr. Doucett's plea with this word of caution to our readers.

The first snows are falling, and ice is to be found on the roads unexpectedly. Children, in spite of warnings from their parents, insist on using roads for sleighing and for games. During the festive season there are sure to be many drivers who are more festive than intelligent, and who are not in full control of their machines. But if as many people as possible observe the common rules of safety, hundreds of accidents will be prevented.

The motorists cannot be blamed for all the accidents and it is up to pedestrians and cyclists to behave sensibly, too. In a single day last week we saw four cyclists ride through red lights; we could not begin to count the number of jay-walkers and foolish scamperers whom we have seen risking their lives on the streets. Motorists can control their .cars, but they cannot be responsible for the actions of every fool who runs in front of their wheels. December is a bad month for traffic accidents, and only vigilance can prevent them.

"Of Cabbages And Kings"

By PETER ELIOT

NO we really know the personalities of the men in whom we have given the powers of government, and at a most critical time in world history, or has our public opinion been moulded for us? "What passes for public opinion usually has a select and intimate origin," Lord Bryce, one time British Ambassador to the United States and one of the thinkers behind the founding of the International Joint Commission, is reported to have once said. Most people think of Mackenzie King as cautious and not very sure of himself, Bennett as bombastic, Borden, pompous Attlee, meek, Bevin, pretty rough, Sir Stafford, cool, remote and horribly intellectual But are they? Well, some of these over simplifications of personality are exposed in Francis Williams' new book Triple Challenge. The author, who was Attlee's adviser on public relations, can speak with authority as re-gards his late boss and other government

A CCORDING to Williams, Attlee's authority in the Labour Party is complete.
"Bevin, Cripps, Morrison, (he says), each of these has dominating talents; each overtops Attlee in some respect; but none of them possesses the balance of qualities that he does. His personality is so disciplined, so modest in external matters, so little self-seeking, that the hard core of steely self-confidence, the streak of ruthlessness that forms a part of it, as it must indeed of that of every successful politician, is apt to be overlooded."

WILLIAMS describes how one Cabinet minister, who was not considered ade-quate to the demands of his post, was disquate to the demands of his post, was dismissed. "One such minister described how he was summoned to 10 Downing Street, and told by the Prime Minister that he had decided to ask for his resignation. There was then a pause. The Prime Minister did not appear to think it necessary to add anything in explanation. At last the dismissed Minister summoned his courage, and hoping for something, even if it were only an o piece of superficial courtesy, that would help and putting a bold face on the matter with why you want me to go, sir? Some change in administration?' 'I don't think you measure up to a Minister's job,' said the Prime Minister. And that was the end of that.

TWO things influenced the Prime Minister; the Army, and the East End. He served with distinction in Gallipoli, Mesopotamis and France, and after being injured, returned to Limehouse with his batman, Griff. Griff remembers the East End and how it helped keep his idol out of funds.

"He never had no money-Griff says. Give it all away. Hundreds and hundreds of it. 'Money for the children's shoes. Here you are then,' 'Money to start up with a barrow. You come round tonight and I'll see what we can fix up.' 'Behind with the rent, mother? Don't you worry about that. You pay me back when your old man gets a job.

Williams believes that Attlee will occupy a greater position when history comes to be written than his contemporaries think

ERNIE Bevin is different. Attlee be leader of the Labour Party in 1935 when George Lansbury resigned. Lansbury was an inrepentant pacificist and left over Italian oil sanction issue. Ernie delivered the attack and did not mince words.

When someone protested later that he had been unnecessarily harsh in dealing with an old comrade whose idealism and simple goodness had an immense place in the history of the Labour Movement, he replied brutally: "Lansbury's been going about dressed in saint's clothes for years waiting for martyr-

WHILE he still retains his ruthlessness, he has mellowed a bit with increased reto interest himself in subjects entirely unrelated to his own province, Foreign Affairs. He can intervene in any discussion with unusual and quite pertinent facts.

Williams enjoys recalling one such intervention at a meeting at which Sir Ben Smith. the Minister of Food, had been undergoing a gruelling cross-examination on the world fat situation. At last the Prime Minister, who was conducting the cross-examination, fin-ished. Ben Smith sat back with an obvious air of saying to himself: "Well, thank God that's over." And then Bevin, who had been sitting silent, slowly munching a non-exist-ent something as he often does when listening, so that he gives the impression of a ruminating and watchful ox, leaned forward, fixed the Minister of Food with a basilisklike glare and said with massive deliberation: "What about medicinal paraffin?" Ben Smith who had been sure his ordeal was over, start-ed as though a gun had gone off. "Medicinal paraffin!" he said. "I don't understand. If the Foreign Secretary...."

"You can fry fish in it," said Bevin, spacan it; said Bevis, spacing his words with steamroller-like inevitability. "I had some last night. You ought to use it." And he looked around as though to say, "That'll give him something to think about. That's brought him down to brass

DURING one of those periodic crises during the Council of Foreign Ministers, the Minister of Supply, John Wilmot was called to the phone. Needless to say he was ex-tremely excited with the Foreign Minister at other end of the line. Bevin's slow vo with its broad vowels and contempt for aitches cames over the wires: "'Elio," it said. "Is that you, John? I've been thinking about metal essement win-

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

Chances are that the Petes' puckists will never again make Ome-"home" ice. On account of there's a rink here now and later we'll have artificial ice. So, barring lise here or something unfor-seen, folks won't be seeing the Petes perform again in Omemee. But the veteran troupers of this club should remember Omemee fondly. After the Brock was sold and, following a brief fling in Lindsay, the club broke up as such in the early part of this decade away several years at that time-and half : dozen of the better Fetes players turned up in Omemee livery. Three years ago (that would be the autumn of '45) the club re-organized properly again and ran as the Peterborough Hockey Club but with "home" games in Omemee. And inued there the last two seasons. They did right well, also, though they lost out last spring in group finals. They built up a good Omemee and district following, as well as the hundreds who went from here for those "home" games. They got a fine break from village and rink officials and made themselves some money. The Peterborough players were taken over and adopted whole-heartedly by the Omemee folk. They were treated like native sons, and they enjoyed it thoroughly.

Called Omemee Home.

Chaps like Ray Harding, Les Burton, Joe Blewett, Honey Tomp kins, Bun Kingdon and Art Heal formed the nucleus of these local players who called Omemee home. Along with a number of Omemee players. Later, others from here got in one the show. These fellows were pretty much at their peak at that time and did okay for both the village and themselves. But times change, and now we've a rink of our own once more. And these fellows-those who haven't hung up their skates-must play here now, or not at all. It's a Peterborough gain but an Omemee loss. And we imagine those chaps will always recall Omemee and those enthusiastic fans jammed in there

They played their last game there on Monday, March 8, last spring. Legion beat the Petes that exciting night 4-2 for the senior "B" group title, four games to one in the final serial. Place was packed and it was a swell scrap, but some of the Petes were slowing up a bit while the hungry Legionnaires were coming. Still, a 4-2 score shows it was a real battle. Both sides had a lot of followers and feelings ran high, but it wasn't too rough a joust. Just 13 penalties, seven to the winners. Crowley scored from Doug Mortimer in the first, and Freddy Mortimer evened it up. Bob Greenlaw and Ernie Nicholls got goals in the second, with Rochetta and Crowley getting assists. Red Creighton tallied in the third from Tompkins but Parnell clinched it later from Ned Vitarelli. And that was that.

Those In Attendance

Those with the Petes in their last Omemee game were: Ray Harding, Drake Jopling, Red Creighton, Jerry Creighton, Joe Blewett, Fred Garvey, Bun Kingdon, Honey Tompkins, Fred Mortimer, Ron Horton, Keith Montgomery, Floyd Parsons and Les Burton. Quite a few of the originals, eh? Floyd was the only Omemos puckist in uniform. Legion had Ross Nicholis, Johnny Godfrey, Ned Vitarelli, Joe Rochetta, Bob Greenlaw, Bill Crowley, Ernie and Ace Nicholls, Al Burns, Bob Parnell, Dootch Vitarelli, Toodie Greenlaw and Doug Mortimer. This year, if there's hockey in Omemee, the village will be supplying the players, with maybe some from the surrounding area. But the Petes won't be

Bradshaw and Vallerie scored for Toronto. Ross Nicholls was a standout in goal as Legion used the 'Caygeon players this joust. Ned Vitarelli showed he is as tricky as ever in a tight corner as one of the big guys on the other team tried to nail him on the boards and banged himself. A good game.

Made Them Hustle

The "Y" Wonders, using Jack Matthews of Western, gave Marines "A" cagers a sizzling scrap before the "A" crew pulled out an exhibition 34-30 win Saturday at the Collegiate, A battle right to workout of the season. Santa Claus Attends Five Parties Saturday

By LARRY OUELLETTE.

MONTREAL, Dec. 20 (CP). Santa Claus is an accomplished old fellow and nowhere is he more so than in Quebec Province and especially Montreal. For here he must add bilingualism to his jolly qualifications.

Thousands and thousands Thousands and thousands of youngsters have been to visit him and whether he is plain Santa or "Pere Noel" he must be ready to switch from one lauguage to another depending on what language his tiny visitors uso.

In Montreal you can hear Santa gaving "Control of the santa gaving" "Control of the santa gaving "Control of the santa gaving" "Control of the santa gaving "Control of the santa gaving" "Control of the santa gaving "Control of the santa gaving" "Control of the santa gaving "Control of the santa

In Montreel you can hear Senta saying "Out, me belle petite" to a dark-eyed little girl who wants a carriage for her "poupee."

Then in the next breath he will be saying it all over again in English to a freckle-faced youngster who wants a new pair of skates.

In cosmopolitan Montreal, per-haps more than any other place in Canada, the Santa Claus in-terest shows that if there are any real differences between French and English-speaking Canadians they don't embrace sentiment as-sociated with Christmas.

SLITHERING THROUGH a chink in the "iron curtain" into the Soviet zone of Berlin was simple for ex-paratrooper Edward J. Lada compared to the terrific task of making up his mind. Lada, who hails from Newark, NJ, was jailed in Berlin by US army authorities for "illegal entry" after he had made his way into the Russian zone in an attempt to bring out his "wife and child." He is visited (above) in the brig by Ruth Giecki, unmarried mother of Lada's child, Nancy, who seems infatuated with her dad's nose. However, another character entered the cast when Ursula Schmidt, German actress, showed up claiming that she is Lada's financee and that he came to bring her back to the US. She is shown with him (below). Lada said Ursula is the woman he loves. Both women want him. Uncle Sam got him, but now again he is at large having escaped from jail.

Farmers Debate Selling Cotton Crop

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 20 (AP). — Cotton farmers planted a $1,000,000,000 crop during 1948 but at year's end are pondering er to sell now or hold for higher prices.

He has two choices. He can sell it at present market prices or enter it in the United States Government loan program and hope for better prices later.

Nearly 3,0000,000 bales already are in government hands and the trade guesses are that as much as 6,000,000 bales may be entered in the loan eventually.

Increase Reflected

The increase in loan cotton was reflected in the sale of spot cot-ton. The New Orleans Exchange reported that spot sales since August 1 totalled 3,971,675 bales. This compared with 4,939,544 bales for the August-December period last year.

Had the cotton been available last spring it would have brought last spring it would nave brought one of the highest prices in 25 years. But, as the months pass-ed, values dropped and near the end of the year future contracts on the New Orleans Exchange varied between 29.02 cents a pound to 32.13 cents. The official prediction Decem-ber 8 placed the estimated crop at 14,937,000 bales of 500 pounds

The estimated crop, if realized, would be the sixth largest in history. But the indicated yield per acre of 311½ pounds was a new record and the first time it had ever gone above 300 pounds. The previous record of 298.9 pounds was set in 1944.

Christmas Shopping Rush

A great philosophical debate rages throughout the year: can human nature be changed? With the problem of Christmas shopping, it seems certain at least that the vast majority

So, what happens? Naturally, urday afternoon before Christ-everyone waits until the moment mas.
Year after year, patient store which has apparently been chosen by all his fellow citizens, and together they form a clogged mass. This is especially noticeable on a Saturday afternoon downtown, when the city's stores fairly bulge and buckle at the walle with here.

The Christmas shopper is a long suffering person, much wept-over in allegedly funny newspaper stories and a favorite subject of sympathy from friends. The trials and tribulations of the season's rush are gabbed about over bridge tables and in living rooms or weeks after.

Do these martyred souls ever learn anything from their har-rowing experiences? Evidently

Last Saturday morning, it was possible to get around George and the other main streets of Peter-borough without too much physical exertion or mental fatigue. Other mornings last week, there were no crowds at all. In fact, some of the shops looked forlorn as they shone in seasonal decorations with only a few shopper drifting through.

But Saturday afternoon? And every afternoon this week? They were—and will be—out in droves, scratching and clawing, pushing and shoving, grunting and groan-ing to get at the store counters, Shoppers Seek Wisdom mas shopping was still in the shadowy future, a Greek dramatist, Aeschylus, once wrote that "Wisdom cometh by suffering." It

Then again, it is unlikely that he would have been greatly concerned about his list. His friends—if he was anything the Christmas shopping the word writers—no doubt got That would be the easy way to like most writers-no doubt got autographed copies of his latest dramatic output. Which doesn't help a person much, unless one is furning out a published play every year.

Department store managers we talked to have reached an almost mellow stage of resignation at this time of year. They spend thousands of dollars urging shop-early habit; most of it is wasted, they will candidly admit, although some wise people (perhaps the ones who have taken Aeschylus' writings to heart) follow the sage reasoning.

The Day Draws Near

This year in Peterborough, as fairly general throughout the pro-vince, the shopping rush has been slow in starting. According to store officials, there's a psychological reason for it.

It's the weather. People haven't been able to realize that Christmas is so close. Maybe this bit of snow we're having now will con-vince them...although it's already too late to cut down

Monday morning, one of them shook his head sadly.

"Look at the store now—nearly empty. The salesgirls are standing around with nothing to do. By three o'clock this afternoo they'll be wishing for two more hands and a couple of extra legs to try to keep up with the rush.
"And you should have been here Saturday afternoon. Bedlam—that's it. Bedlam. The only name for it. Sometimes I think I

Perhaps this annual mass inability to move soon enough has some deeper socialogical roots:
Do people like to suffer? Are they all, like Aeschylus, seeking wisdom through suffering—and taking this method of getting their whole year's wisdom in a couple of days? Could be.
But don't blame Aeschylus or the store managers if you're buffeted, beaten, bashed and bruised.

SHOW THE OTHER SUIT

IT IS NEARLY always bad bridge to let your partner play for a No Trump game if you have shown him in the bidding only one of two strongly biddable five-card suits. Unless his bids have definitely shown both of the other suits soundly stopped, there is danger to his project. When he has given no such assurance, it is nearly always best to take him out with your unbid suit at the level of four, even if the suit be a minor. That gives him three options—either of your two suits or No Trumps, the latter of course at a higher level than before, but a choice he won't make unless with very good stoppers in the other two suits.

Footprints Lead To Car Thieves

PORT CREDIT, Dec. 21—(CP)

Following footprints in the snow for two miles over fields, provincial Police early today argueted three Hamilton youths charged witr car theft.

M. H. Cole of Woodstock told walken the second property of the charge of the char car then swerved into the ditch.

He went up to it, saw three men lying in the car, apparently unconscious and went for help.

He hailed a provincial police cruiser. Returning to the car they found no one there. Police followed footprints in the snow. They led to a shack used as a tool shed by a construction company. The shack was surrounded and the three surrendered.

In reply to a question by the accused, who claimed he had done some work at the florist shop and used three-quarters of a gallon of the paint, Mr. Sorenson answered: "I saw you there only about five minute. If you used three-quarters of a gallon of paint in that time, I'd like to know where it is."

"Tight this morning." The accused indicated the outside, Water St., where he said he had a truck loaded with his furniture.

"It will be a pretty tough Christmas for the children," he told His Worship.

Said Crown Attorney V. J. Mc-Elderry to the accused: "The children will be looked after."

Disagreeing with that interpretation, Mr. David said: "We certainly believe that the Board is used o being fair, and in this case, we feel that the Board has simply overlooked certain factors."

The New Income Tax Forms

Copies of the new income tax forms have come into our hands. There are only two, and sometime before April 90th next year nearly all our readers will fill out one or the other. Most will use the "T.1 Short Form" which is for people whose income (regardless of its size) is from salaries, wages or pensions, and who do not get more than $1,800 from investments. The other form-"T.1 General"—is for professional people whose income is from fees, for farmers. businessmen, people receiving commissions, and anyone whose income from investments amounts to more than $1,800. Both forms have the virtue of Three million of the 31/2 million insome taxpayers will use the short form. It is a small four-page folder which will fit into a pocket. The language is simple: "My family or last name is"; "My last income tax was filed for the year 19—". Special matters and headings are emphasized by their being printed in purple. Helpful arrows direct the eye and pen, and there are maral notations like: "You may not, aim more than one of these".

The larger form for business rmers—four foolscap pages—is equalimple and lucid, perhaps more lucid of more space and larger type. mer should not have to employ operations are varied and complex, or he wants professional advice on how best to determine what his income is.

e new forms are an improvement e old. They are so relatively brief and small that we wonder if they have not been over-simplified. Much is crowded into little space. We suspect that any new problems arising from the plified forms will be bothersome to the income tax offices, not to the people naking the tax returns.

Mr. Drew has been calling the C.C.F. the "National Socialist Party", Mr. Coldwell, its leader, thinks this is slanderous. Drew's epithet without capital letters, smugly defends Mr. Drew. It says:

It would appear that Mr. Coldwell's ob-ction to the term is that it is the same as e English translation usually given of (ationalsosialistische Deutsche Arbeiterpartel"—the party founded in Germany itter in 1919. The objection, it which the term happens to have. But littler is dead and at least officially in his grave. And it is an old maxim that the ng does not take away from

n remains whether or not Mr. Coldwell would object to the term, apart from its unfortunate historical associations. That is balderdash, dressed up as suave

Mr. Drew cannot be exculpated by that kind of glib reasoning. The term 'National Socialist" with which he tags the C.C.F. in capital letters, even if his supporting press does print it in small ones, does happen to have repulsive perty of Hitler and his Nazis, yesterday, day and for centuries to come.

Mr. Drew knows very well what "National Socialist" means in Canadian ears. Yet the Montreal Gazette says that it is a question of "whether or not Mr. Coldwell would object to the term; apart from its unfortunate historical associations". What twaddle! As well try to separate the term from its "unfortunate" associations as separate a skunk from its stripes. "National Socialist" stinks; its "historical associations" are not merely unfortunate, they are downright lothsome. If Mr. Drew is not slandering the C.C.F. by calling it "National Socialist" he is certainly abusing it foully. Such tactics will not convert fair-minded people to the Conservative cause, nor will they be deceived by the Gasette's malarkey.

The Crime Of Being One-Eighth Negro

The laws and customs of the State of Mississippi are no concern of ours except insofar as they touch all humanity. The southern State of Mississippi has one law which touches humanity harshly. The law is one that forbids marriage cohabitation between white persons and those of one-eighth or more of Negro or Mongolian blood. The other day a young man was sentenced to five years' imprisonment for miscegenation under this law. His crime was that he, who had a great-grandmother reputed to be a negress, married a white girl. The man, who looks like a white man, served in the American army as a white

People have racial prejudices and there is even in Canada no general approval of marriages between negroes and white people. It seems to us, however, foolish if not iniquitous to translate such prejudices into law. The Nazis had such laws, theirs being directed against Jews. South Africa seems to be adopting similar tactics against its native population. It is an unfortunate manifestation of society's inhumanity to man. When the law begins to deal in fractions, it can be horribly cruel, as in the case of the Mississippi white man whose great-grandmother's blood has been used to condemn him as a social outcast and a criminal. When the law divides the blood into fractions, what family, even in "pure-white" Southern States, is without its numerator of impurity? There are many rather darkskinned proud whites in Mississippi who explain that an ancestor was an Indian chieftain. If the legislators of Mississippi should decide to brand people of Indian, rather than negro blood, would they be able to prove that their Indian chieftain had really been an African king?

Heavy Hearts In Hollywood

Hollywood is suffering from a painful awakening: the public simply will not go to bad movies. Benedict Bogeaus mplains that "We're taking an awful chance every time we make a picture", and of the public he says "You can't fool them". It is possible to spend a million dollars on publicity "but if it's bad they won't come anyway". This may be bad news to Bogeaus, but it is good

Any good advertising man could tell Mr. Bogeaus that money spent to advertise a poor product is money thrown away. And any competent critic could tell him that even people who have no trained critical ability can tell a bad movie from a good one by the way they feel when they leave the theatre. Now, it appears, they can tell the difference without going to the theatre.

The public, in spite of a cherished Hollywood belief, is not stupid. And now that a large number of foreign films are available for comparison, the public is more aware than ever of the shortcomings of the Hollywood products. Moviemakers have declared many times that the average mental age of their audience is eleven years. But they have not seen the folly of such a generalization, nor have they realized that a man of Sootch tape! Pictures similarly, alongside. thirty-five, even if his I.Q. gives him The page filled, it then had its photograph the intelligence of an eleven-year-old, is not precisely the same person as a child of eleven. What is more, Hollywood persists in making films for a mythical "average". Millions of people are above the average, and millions more want to raise themselves above the average level. Perhaps the solution lies in smaller moviehouses, and an appeal to classes, rather than masses. Let the stupid go to movies made for them: let the people of average intellect go to movies made for them; let the keenly intelligent (a much larger group than Hollywood supposes) go to movies made for highbrows. But the day of movies for the masses seems to be over. And the day when millions of dollars spent on production and publicity could sell an infantile story and mediocre acting is over too.

NOTES AND COMMENT

There will be no award of the Nobel Peace Prize this year, which is only fair. as there obviously isn't $25,000 worth of peace in the whole wide world.

Revolution In Printing

(Condensed by "Provincial's Paper" from an article by C. Lester Walker in "Harper's

ANY one who reads has probably seen nething about the "revolution" which is now going on in the publishing and printing industry. For, make no mistake, a real revolution is going on. Some newspapers within the past eight months have been printed without type being set for the purpose. And just over the horizon are magazines which will be, if I may use the term, "ghost" printed. No printing surface of any kind will ever touch their paper, yet a faithful "impression" will be made.

At present most of these new invention and devices are very much in the preliminary or experimental stage. But they give every sign of coming fast. This revolution, like all others-political, economic, socialhas had its underlying causes; and their story, if one would know why the printing upheaval happened to come at this time, is a basic part of the chronicle,

AT the bottom of all the causes is the plight of the publishing industry in the past few years. For the publisher has been caught, as never before in history, in an upward vor-

We have seen the outward evidence of this plight in rising costs for printed matter. Costs, in the book field, have gone up 80 to 90 per cent. in the past few years. But the price of books to the readers has risen only 20 to 25 per cent. Newspaper and magazine straits. Production costs had an ever-rising ceiling. Revenue from subscribers and adertisers did not. Obviously, some sort of relief must come.

Meantime, during these stressful years, chnical advances in the art of printing were steadily accumulating. Inventors and remethod one day, a new plate material an-other. But, paradoxically, the printers and publishers never whole-heartedly availed themselves of such technical advances. Some of the new inventions and discoveries, of course, were tried; but only a meager fraction

The bulk of printing was done, fundament ally, as it had been done for hundreds of One set type, spread ink on it and pressed the type and paper against one andiscoveries began piling up like the water behind a dam, And meantime, the publishers' dilemma was becoming ever worse-wages, paper and other costs steadily rising The spark that set it off came a year ago. This was the strike of all the composers and pressmen of all the newspapers of Chicago. + + +

THEREAFTER, the struggle was a drama in which the chief actors were often ma-chines. One of the first to appear on the scene was the Vari-Typer. This is a kind of glorified typewriter with interchangeable type-faces of 600 sizes and styles, in 50 diftype-races of 600 sizes and styles, in 50 dif-ferent languages. Including Arabic! But what it could do especially for printers was to "justify" the lines. That is, it could pro-duce an even right-hand margin, as in a a spectacular opportunity to prove its worth.

The story was first typed in correct column widths on the Vari-Typer or (case of the Sun-Times) on a similar "justifying typewriter" of the International Business chines Corporation. The columns were then pasted up on cardboard the page size of the newspaper. Headlines were then pasted above — individual large-size letters and taken. This "picture" of the paste-up was then engraved - that is, acid-etched on a sheet of zinc. Copies were made, put on the press as cylinders, and run. Note here what had happened; the compositor and the form make-up man had been done away with. Typesetting had been completely by-passed and any stenographer could operate the Vari-Typer. In fact the Chicago Tribune used its "regular girls around the office." The pubishers at first ran into a succession of highvoltage headaches. One of these was the natter of speed. The papers couldn't be got out as quickly. Then another factor, this time a new material, entered the picture with a possible solution - the magnesium printing

I SING magnesium plates, the papers found you could banish the time-lag caused by making engravings. Old-time photo-engraving plates sometimes took over an hour to etch. With magnesium, the time from copy to full-page-size finished plate was forty-five

And the new material turned out to have revolutionary advantage in another respect, weight: one-fourth of zinc, one-fifth of copper. The usual stereo weighed forty-six pounds. In magnesium, it weighed nine. Further, where the magnesium reproduced a photograph it was superb. The metal was finer grained than zinc or copper, hence printed from a finer engraving, which yielded sharper detail.

As the strike continued, the typeless newspapers continued to come out regularly, never missing a day. Circulation, rather than dropping, increased!-and eventually justifying typewriters were obtained which typed in in newspaper type faces. Then some of the newspapers took on a more normal appear

One result of these events was that publishers, began to flock to Chicago to look at what was happening, then went home to Du-buque and Albuquerque and started thinking and, here and there, experimenting in revonary methods themselves.

AFTER the strike, will the papers go back to traditional methods? The press, and printing authorities, in April (with the Chicage strike still on) predicted that most of

A Law School Centenary

Montreal Star: One hundred years ago a group of students met at the Court House and petitioned McGill College to open a law course leading to the degree of Bachelor d Civil Law. To become a lawyer at that time the student had to be articled to a practising advocate for five years. He then appeared before a committee of judges who, if they considered him sufficiently learned in the law, recommended that he be commissioned to practice by the government.

After some argument, not as to the four ing of a law school but as to how it should function, the Governors of McGill granted the request. McGill's law faculty came into existence. Today it celebrates its centenary, a distinguished school functioning in a com-

ModernCottages Used To Lure Men To Farms

LONDON, Dec. 21 — (CP), — A farm cottage with modern conveniences is the bait used in luring Britons back to the land their ancestors deserted.

Labor-government policy is to increase form production and reduce Britain's dependence on imported foods. Priority has been given the manufacture of farm equipment and prices and mar-kets have been guaranteed farm-ers. But the whole program will be stalled unless more farm workers are obtained.

For generations the drift has been from rural areas to the cit-ies, where wages and living con-ditions were better. Now the ditions were better. Now the minimum wage for farm workers is £4 10s ($18) weekly with assurances of overtime and other privileges previously enjoyed only by city workers.

In 1939, farm workers aumbered 950,000. The home food production drive in wartime raised the total to 1,041,000 in 1945.

Govrnment subsidies on farm cottages now amount to £25 '0s a year for 60 years. This means they can be let for 10s weekly less than the economic rent.

This year every rural council was askedd to provide details of farm cottages needed in their area and by December 31 an estimated 90,000 rural cottages will have been completed, with thousands more under construction. In some areas nearly half the cottages are set aside for farm workers and their families.

Scribe Mike Rodden of Kingston writes: "Cec. Perdue openly wonders how Kingston can possibly ice three strong OHA senior 'B teams, and thereof Mr. Perdue strikes no discordant note. Facts must be faced relative to the local situation and the problem at hand should be studied closely before final decisions are rendered. Certainly none of the Kingston senior 'B' teams bears that championship-contending tag at this time and will not achieve such an objective unless reinforcements are rushed to the rescue. Navy Tars rate top consideration locally but in the meantime the fact should not be lightly regarded that the Sailors were found wanting when opposing the Rocket juniors in the Kingston League playoffs. Max Jackson would undoubtedly erect a machine of strength by pooling local talent."

* * * * * * * We had no intention of belittling Kingston hockey—as ome strong squads have come out of that centre regularly -but it is a fact that a city contains only so many good senior "B" puckists, and it is highly doubtful if Kingston could throw three contending teams this season into the OHA senfor "B" pot. It hustled Peterborough to put two good clubs in last year, and then some talent from the surrounding district dotted local lineups. What the Petes and Legionnaires will be like this coming campaign of course remains to be seen. Particularly when they're pared of outside hockeyists.

A Drain On Talent

In line with this, Bill Westwick writes in the Ottawa Journal: 'It now must be apparent to most connected wih the game that Canada cannot produce all the top-line hockey players necessary to acfifth place with 22 points each are Boston's Pete Babando, and commodate new leagues which have sprung up all over the United Ed Sandford and Ted Kennedy States. There has been a tremendous drain on talent, and England and Scotland have reached out to pick up more. Whether all will survive is a question. A league in the experimental stages may get by with ordinary hockey talent for a time, but it isn't too long before the fans become educated and demand a better class of hockey.'

The search for puck talent is keen and even the so-called amateurs now the shutout department also with are trading players and cash in a fashion hitherto unheard of outside of professional ranks. Even juvenile and junior "B" boys are racked up by Toronto's Turk being scouted these days. And Canada continues to be the big producer of players.

Among Christmas cards received is a neat number from Fred Dufton. The manager of Cobourg's Galloping Ghosts invariably has a grid motif on his seasonal greeting cards and this time it's a picture of the Ghosts-Orillia playoff in Peterborough on Nov. 17. The Ghosts, you will recall, went on to win Eastern Canada intermediate honors and took the unofficial Dominion title by default when no Western Canada team accepted their challenge. A good squad when the chips were down. Fred's favorite sport by several city blocks is football and he puts a lot of effort into the organization work of the Galloping Ghosts. Jack Dempsey, fully aware

Hollywood Stars Tell Wishes To Santa Claus

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 21 (AP)-What should Santa Clous bring Hollywood for Christmas? Some of the stars were stumped for an answer. But most of them came up with fast replies.

Eddie Cantor - "A book on How to Act in Public."

Shirley Temple — 'The ability to continue to entertain people."
Ava Gardner—'Good pictures'
Anne Baxter — 'A good public relations director who could let the public know that Holly-wood is a pretty sane place de-spite a few notables who make headlines."

June Allyson—"Lower taxes."
Red Skelton—"A little2personal Red Skelton—"A little2personal kindness. It will go a long way."
John Payne — "A more sober realization of the immense influence of the picture business and the responsibilities therby. And a little less concentration on the dollar end—because if you make good pictures, the money will come in anyway."

George Raft — "More realism before and behind the camera."

Pretty, curly-haired Grace

"Ugly" was the way she described the metal arms with hooks for hands and fingers which she for bands and fingers which she tried out today.

But her parents and the State Welfare Department, which provided the appliances, hope the wistful little girl will tearn to use them.

UK Film Cost Rises, Demand For Movies Lower

adian Press Staff Writer

Sanadan Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 21 (CP)—Movie producers today are fighting a battle as grim as any they have shown on the screen — a battle against rising costs.

Making a movie today costs four times as much as it did before the war. An average 1938 feature could be made for £50-,000 ($200,000). The same sort of film today costs £200,000 ($200,000).

Film accountants grew reality worried a year ago when they realized that the cost of an average film was more than it could earn in Britain. Not only did the United States market, on which so much money had been spent, fall flat, but movie-going began to fall from its war-time peak.

"We must cut costs," the accountants said. However, the

In the movie industry, more than any other, time means money. Hollywood competition has sent British movie stars' salaries up at least 300 per cent and £1,000 ($4,000) a week is not uncomment for a British star power. £1,000 ($4,000) a week is not uncommon for a British star nowadays. A good supporting player who received £15 a week in prewar times now asks £40.

The five-day week and stricter working hours add up to more time and money. In the past a director with a huge crowd of extres could work right through the week-end. Holidays with pay now cost one studio an extra £5,establish junior colleges or to open new universities.

"We are making every attempt to cut costs," an official of one film company said. "Scenario de-partments have been cut down and techniques revised with a view to cutting out waiting periods on the set.

In the House of Commons recently, Capt. Raymond Black-burn, Labor M.P. for King's Norton, Warwickshire, asked for a cut in production costs, claiming that se who produced were "starvwere thriving.

Harold Wilson, president of the ing of production was needed and movie producers are trying to discover just how this can be done.

politics of Northern Ontario's nickel city.

At 31 he became the youngest mayor Sudbury has ever had. His astute business sense and a run of luck made him a millionaire—but the stock market crash of 1929 scattered his riches to the winds. He watched Sudbury grow from a tough mining camp to a rich and prosperous city and he spent 16 years in its public life as a member of its city council.

"Never mind. I know you've gone away over your head. But let this be a lesson."

Personal Gift Of $100 Aids Food Fund

By FRED MANN

There are times when a pat on the back acts as encouragement to Johnny when he is trying to do something worthwhile, and this in most instances acts as an incentive to further effort.

This strikes a parallel with a personal gift of $100 to the United Emergency Food for Britain Fund, from Mr. J. K. Hughes, through G. R. Melton, a member of the local committee, and led to hopes that it would lead to the possible raising of $1,000 by Christmas Day.

That would mean about $700 to reach such an amount by that to reach such an amount by that time. Having faith in the goodness of such a cause as this is, and also a faith in our citizens when they realize the need, this could be reached easily.

This Fund in reality should be considered as a continuance of Peterborough and District's own Peterborough and Districts own British War Victims Fund. The objects are primarily the same. The first fund was to take care of damage brought about by air of damage brought about by air raid attacks on peoples homes, while this in a larger sense is attempting to assist not only those whose homes were damaged, but also to help the populace as a whole in Britain, all of whom suffer from the meagre rations now obtainable only on an equal basis to all.

Mr. Switzer said that his group felt the Board had used "reverse logic" in making the two changes —raising the salaries of women who qualify as householders and then giving the same cost-of-living bonus to all teachers.

"In the first case, the Board honors the fact that married persons have greater financial responsibilities; the second move doesn't follow that line of reasoning."

G W. Craw, chairman of the Board's finance committee, said that the arrangements made were "not reverse reasonings." He said that the difference between maxima for male and female teachers gives the advantage.

For the patient, it works this way: On or shortly after July 5, he signed on to a doctor's list as a public patient. In most instances, it was the same family doctor who had been treating him for years. A responsible person in the family could register the whole broad of children. From then on if anybody gets sick he just goes to the doctor.

The doctor can not have more

If the woman could have had attention earlier, her case might never have become so difficult. Too few doctors and too little hospital space kept her waiting until the case was urgent and the ailment so deeply entrenched that little could be done.

These problems were present before the health plan began. Health ministry officials figure that similar cramping will continue several years. Eventually, they hope to overcome it.

More hospital building and equipment is still drawing-board stuff, waiting in line for men, money and material to be eased out of housing projects. It takes time to train doctors but Health Minister Aneurin Bevan believes more and more youths will try more and more youths will try medicine for a career now that they are assured of a minimum living as soon as they are quali-fied and do not have to indebt

Straight Pay Increase Not Cost-Of-Living Bonus To Be Used

OTTAWA, Dec. 22 (CP)-Pay increases for civil servants and members of the armed services with top-ranking officers except-ed in each case—were announced today by the Federal Government, retroactive to Oct. 1.

New pay scales with increase ranging between $10 and $20 a month were made public for a group of the larger civil service classes, and the announcement said it was expected rates in "most" other classes would be boosted. The bulk of the increases are of $15 a month.

For the armed forces, the gov ernment has decided on an increase of $10 a month for ranks up to and including a commander lieutenant-colonel and wing com-mander and another $10 a month in the marriage allowance.

Straight Pay Boost

The increases take the form of a straight pay boost, rather than the cost-of-living bonus which civil servants have been seeking. They had asked for about $46 a nonth across the board.
The raises announced include few employees making more than $4,000 a year. However, the gov-ernment said "salaries of other grades will be reviewed at once and revised if necessary."

"All classes will be reviewed," said the announcement from Prime Minister St. Laurent's office, "and it is expected that sal-ary rates in most classes will be creased."

Don't Expect Price To Be Increased: Cabinet Hears Plan

OTTAWA, Dec. 22 — (CP) — A new Anglo-Canadian food contracts plan—to include disposition of part of Canada's huge wheat crop next year—is expected to be laid before cabinet by agriculture minister Gardiner today.

Although nature of the plan still is a well-kept secret, high government quarters said Tuesday night there were indications that adoption of the plan may mean Canadian farmers will get no higher price tor their wheat crop in 1949. The price may range around $2 a bushel.

Dilapidated School To Be Repaired

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 22 -(ENS)-The Board of Education discussed urgently needed improvements to the public school building, when it met on Monday. The school was in such a dilapidated condition that the Board had no alternative but to start extensive alterations and repairs despite shortages and high prices.

It was decided to ask experts from the company that supplied the boiles and stoker to inspect the units and to have the boiler inspector make the necessary tests. It was also decided to apply to the toilet supply house for the necessary equipment to com-plete the toilets.

A communication was received from the secretary of the Canadian National Exhibition announcing that two non-competi-tive school art exhibits were being sponsored by the exhibition and invited the school to partici-

Mr. Drew's Victory

It is no surprise that Mr. George Drew won the by-election in Carleton County by a large majority. The seat has been held by Conservatives since 1867; Mr. Drew is a forceful campaigner; there was no Liberal candidate (a courtesy extended to Mr. Drew as prospective Leader of the Opposition). A C.C.F. candidate in Carleton County, no matter if he be as able as Dr. Forsey, has less chance of accumulating a plurality of votes there than a snowball in Florida has of rolling into a glacier. We are glad that Mr. Drew has won his seat, for as leader of the Conservative Party, it is essential to good parliamentary government to have him in the House of Commons. The leader of the chief opposition party cannot properly do his job from the bleachers.

As expected, the Honourable Stuart Garson, Minister of Justice and formerly Premier of Manitoba, won the Manitoba seat of Marquette. His majority was so substantial that, as in Carleton County, the opposing C.C.F. candidate lost his deposit.

The Liberals captured the Quebec riding of Laval-Two Mountains, which had been held by an independent. Monday's by-elections have shown that both the Conservative and Liberal parties are vigorous, with candidates and policies which appeal to voters.

Peterborough's Imaginary Federal Building

The other day we wrote in these columns about the crowded and antique Post Office which is unhandsomely ours, and the need for a new Federal building, combining Post Office and Customs House. We suggested that Peterborough should raise a howl in Ottawa to ensure that we have immediately a site, plans and a promise to build.

We made the statement knowing that an appropriation of $50,000 was made in the Supplementary Estimates of the last parliamentary session. We also know that there is in existence a pretty picture, an architect's preliminary sketch of what Peterborough's new Federal building might look life. We even printed the picture in this paper about ten years ago. We also know that it is generally understood that the Dominion Government, which owns property on Charlotte Street near Louis, intends to build something on it sometime. For a score of years, the large lot on the east side of George Street and Sherbrooke was owned by the Government. For a score of years that property was considered to be the site of a new Federal Building. However, last year the Government decided that it did not want the property, and sold it to the city. This year the city sold it to a grocery chain store. If our new Federal Building can become a grocery store once, it can happen again.

Since the Great War of 1914-18 (or was it the Boer War of the last century?) Peterborough has been on the verge of having a new Federal Building. Peterborough people are not from Missouri, but they have learned to outdoubt Missourians. We refuse to count our chickens before they are hatched. The Federal Building will be, in our minds, a cracked egg, a castle in Spain, or a grocery store, until we see it on an architect's board. We shall not believe it until the almost mythical Charlotte Street "site" is razed of its present buildings and until we see a sign on that alleged site: "BEHOLD AND SEE, O Citizens of Peterborough. This Is In Truth The Actual Spot Whereon Will Be Erected the NEW FEDERAL BUILDING. In proof whereof there have been deposited in a glass case in the Public Library the following items: (1) a signed Award of Contract; (2) the cancelled cheque with which has been purchased the brick and mortar; (3) King George VI's acceptance of the invitation to lay the corner-stone"... Even then we may have private doubts. We shall believe in the Federal Building when we see it. Meanwhile, we shall continue to preach on the virtues of raising a hullabaloo in Ottawa.

Administration Changes In Our Schools

Last summer Inspector K. S. Wightnan was appointed Peterborough's first Superintendent of Schools. With his new duties he continued his inspectoral work. His-task was onerous and the increased administrative problems in an expanding school system left him little time for the regular visits of classroom inspection. A deputy inspector seemed necessary. When Mr. Huggins resigned last week as Secretary-Treasurer of the Board of Education, the Board found a way of more closely relating the offices of Superintendent and Secretary-Treasurer, by making Mr. Wightman responstble for both, and appointing a new Inspector of Public Schools.

Mr. Wightman is therefore now Superintendent of the Peterborough school system, Secretary-Treasurer of the Board of Education, and, because of a sensible regulation of the Ontario Legislature, Chief Inspector. An impressive amount of authority and control has thus been delegated to him by the Board of Education. We believe that he will use it wisely and to the benefit of pupils, teachers and the Board who represent the citizens. He has already demonstrated his capacity for work careful decisions and informed counsel.

The Board has not abrogated its rights to Mr. Wightman, for apart from purely pedagogical duties, all matters of policy, the hiring of teachers, and the spending of money still rest finally with the Board. Peterborough is not unique in combining three offices into one. London and Chatham have men who fill Mr. Wightman's triple role, and other cities are following suit.

Some criticism may be directed against the Board for its speedy action in naming Mr. P. D. Windrim, present principal of the Prince of Wales School, Inspector of Public Schools. It may be said that there are other men, both local and outside, who should have been considered for the position. However, the Board did have to take some action in the matter of securing an assistant to Mr. Wightman, and the resignation of Mr. Huggins made quick action unavoidable. The Board is not unaware of other men than Mr. Windrim who are qualified as Inspectors, and Mr. Windhim was not picked out of a hat. He is fully qualified, has served the Board faithfully and vigorously as teacher and principal of a school, and is still a comparatively young man. The way in which during the last dozen years he has equipped himself academically and professionally for an advanced position cannot help but recommend him to the Board and the citizens generally. It is certain that he will work in close harmony with Mr. Wightman.

Penny Postage For A Prince

Penny post is as dead as a dodo because of two wars and the reduced value of the penny. True, Canada made an attempt to restors a two-cent letter rate in 1928, but it did not survive the Depression. We mention the matter now. it was exactly fifty years that imperial Penny Post was introduced between Canada and Britain: Christmas Day, 1898-58 years after Rowland Hill won his fight for Penny Postage in Britain (1840).

The introduction of Imperial Penny Post in 1898 has a good story connected with it, which explains why the new rate was initiated on Christmas Day. The Duke of Norfolk was then Postmaster-General. When he told Queen Victoria that penny postage was to be introduced with Canada, she asked on what day it would come into force. "We thought of the Prince's birthday". replied the Duke, referring to the Prince of Wales, later Edward VII, who was born on November 9th. Queen Victoria did not like even her eldest son and heir to have too much deference paid him: furthermore "The Prince" meant in her widowed ears, Albert, the Prince Consort. She asked the Duke in her iciest tones: "What Prince?" The Duke was quick-witted as well as a courtier. "The Prince of Peace -on Christmas Day". So the new rate became effective on December 25th.

My Christmas Recitation

GEOFFREY VIVIEN

WHEN I was very young-which was round w about the time when radio was in the cat's-whisker stage — Christmas entertainment was home-made. In our family this meant a rendering of Brahm's Lullaby on the ciano by my sister who, after hearing Nellie Melba sing, had fallen deeply under the spell of the musical life; and a duet by my brother and myself-generally "Heigh-ho, come to the fair!" On special occasions there was also a monologue or recitation by Uncle Walter. He was a retired naval captain of the kind who has organized ship's concerts on all the seven seas. A hint of anxiety would appear in my mother's eye when he offered to do his bit, for he had a broad view of what constituted appropriate entertainment for the family at Christmas.

HE had one story in particular which imprinted itself on my memory. It con-cerned one of those characters who have now become classicatigures of our contemporary literature—the fallen lady who becomes the heroine in the hour of crisis. The story puzzled me because I could not get at the reason for the strong disapproval under which Singapore Sally started out in the saga, and the whole force of the drama was therefore lost on me. "Mummy" I would ask when the Uncle Walter says how friendly Sally was? Isn't it a good thing to be friendly?"

THEY were good days, and I believe the corny humour of all our Uncle Walters does a better job of home entertaining than the mechanical product of the polished radio comedians. So now, folks, gather round while Uncle Geoffrey gives his well-known

THE only other Princess to have had issue whilst Heiress to the Throne was Queen Anne, but none of her many offspring survived childhood. Anne had married Prince George of Denmark, and it is an interesting fact that the Duke of Edinburgh is a member of the same Royal House. Although it is presumably certain that the name of Windsor will be retained for our Royal House in the same way as the House of Orange is perpetuated in the Netherlands, where there has been a double descent in the female line, and as the name of Romanov was retained in Russia despite female descent, the descendants of Princess Elizabeth will paternally be of the ancient House of Sleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glucksburg.

Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples.... Remember the word that I said unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord. On the side of the English Royal House, stace the Norman Conquest the Crown has passed by blood from one dynasty to another, out the chain of descent remains unbroken The House of Windsor descends from all the 11 families which have ruled England since King Egbert held sway in the ninth century. That such continuity has prevailed is indeed remarkable, considering the unsettled times our nation has passed through in a thousand

IT was from the Stuarts that Queen Victoria was proudest of her descent, and she took great delight in wearing their tartan. Her own family, the House of Hanover, originat-ed in Italy as the d'Estes, but later moved to Germany after marrying the heiress of the Guelphs. The genealogy of the Saxe-Co burgs, the male line of the House of Windsor, is surely the most complex of all Royal Families to follow; a branch of the House of Saxony, they took their name from a castle on the River Saale. The 800th anniversary of the family was celebrated with great pomp at Dresden in June, 1889.

Through the Queen, the Royal baby also inherits distinguished ancestry. The Bowes-Lyons descend from Robert H of Scotland, kingdom. It is not widely known that the Queen shares an ancestor with George Wash-ington; the present Queen of England and the first President of America both trace back to Colonel Augustine Warner, born and bred in Virginia.

So many of the Crowns of Europe having fallen as a result of two world wars, it is significant that in Northern Europe, where democracy is strongest, monarchy is held in greater esteem than ever before. Many tie of blood unite us with Scandinavia, and what more suitable ancestry could we wish for our future Royal House than the blood of the Vikings and Canute, mingled with that of Alfred the Great, William the Conqueror and Robert Bruce?

"We had little difficulty with the adults in Ontario. They cheerfully took any sort of position which was oftered or suggested in the interests of the Pountry. It was the boys about 17 and 43 who wouldn't stay put. There were quite a number who lust wouldn't stay put. There were quite a number who lust wouldn't stay put. There were not doing our job. We were not telling the whole story to them. In Toronto a Youth Unemployment Center was set up. The employees were trained in youth work. Experience told us there was nothing wrong with the youth of today but they needed more advice and guidance. Vocational Guidance is beginning to be a part of every community duties. There is a fearfully low percentage of youths starting secondary school and a lower percentage finishing. Those dropping out of school are getting any kind of a job and it is generally unfit for them. There is a fincreasing number in search of vocational help. There must be somewhere for them to go for advice and guidance."

Say Detroit Farm System Brings Success

By BERT ALLEN Canadian Press Staff Writer Probably the biggest factor in Detroit Red Wings' rise to their current lofty position in the Na-tional Hockey League is the "depth" of their farm system.

When the Wings invade Boston tonight for a game against the second-place Bruins two new faces will be making their debut

Weakened by injuries to first-string wingmen Ted Lindsay and Gordie Howe, Detroit dipped down into their extensive farm system and called up forwards Nellie Podolsky and Calum Mc-Kay from Indianapolis Capitals of the American League. It was only a couple of weeks ago that the Wings brought up forward Jim Wings brought up forward Jim Enio and defenceman Lee Fogolin from the Caps.

The Detroit-Boston clash is the only game scheduled tonight. The hard-pressed Bruins, after a fast start, have dropped their last five contests and need a victory in the worst way to stay on the heels of the pace-tetting Wings who go into the same with a three-point edge on the Beantowners.

More Action Thursday

More action is slated for Thursday night with the Bruins mov-ing to Montreal for a fixture with Canadiens, while Chicago Black Hawks are hosts to New York Rangers.

Montreal, already crippled by the loss through injuries of allcentre Elmer Lach and 'desome good news for a change Tuesday. The Habitants learned that goalie Bill Durnan will be to take his regular turn between the posts tomorrow night when Canadiens meet Boston. Durnan aggravated an old knee injury against New York Sunday and first indications were that big Bill would have to miss at least two games.

But trainer Bill Head said that heat treatments have worked wonders on Durnan's knee, and he'll be back in action against the Bruins.

Big news Tuesday was New York's announcement that coach
Frankie Boucher had been "kicked upstairs" into the manager's post with former Ranger Lynn Patrick taking over the coaching reins for the Blueshirts. Boucher had led the Rangers from the bench since the 1940-41 season, and was named to the dual position of manager-coach in 1946 when Lester Patrick became a vice-president of Madison Square

Curling News By Herb Martin

We are sorry that we missed 9 o'clock games on Monday ht. Judging by the reported night. scores there must have been some

The pick of the games playe in the 7 o'clock draw, last night, was the Ralph Clark and Ken Bissett affair. It was a knockout game from the first end till the last. Tied coming home, and when the junior Dr. Clark played his last stone, the rings were bare. After consulting with his vice, he decided to draw to the rings and he did just that. When his stone came to rest it was touching the 12-foot ring, centre ice. Ken Bisseit decided to try and pass Clark's stone through, hoping for an extra end, but his missed. They shook hands all around. No. 8 heaved a big sigh, and that was that.

We listened in on this piece of news last night. The story goes that the committee is seriously thinking of adopting the "sub" system for the remaining sched-ule games, the same idea as pro hockey. If a player is not going good, why the skip appeals to No. good, why the skip appears to roo.

8 and they send out a sub. Of course, the same goes for the skip.
If he is a little off color, the rest of his rink gang up on him and call for a sub. Somehow or other the idea appeals to us. We believe it is worth a trial. Some of us chaps who are regulars on No. 8 might get a chance, even

TED ATKINSON, famous jockey, believes in starting the chip off the old block on the right foot! He is shown structing son Johnny, three, how to fix his feet as he rides "Little Slick Beauty," the Shetland pony which pop bought for his Christmas present. Ted hopes to boot home many a winner at the Hialeah Park meet in Florida.

As the skiers smirk at the snowy slopes and drop the odd "Allah be praised!", it occurs to us that one Arnold Lund, a noted ski authority, has semething. In a recent Ottawa interview, he thought that the finest form of skiing is being neglected to some extent-crosscountry skiing. He admits that the downhill and slalom are popular and exciting forms of this winter outdoor sport, but Lund contends that excursions over the untracked snow is skiing at its best. Many will agree with him that the lure of the cross-country hikes on the slick runners can't be beaten. However, all types of skiing have a large following around here, including youngsters-trained in recent years by thoughtful officials of the club-and they'll be out in force

Our item the other day on Omemee hockey memories brought a number of responses from Omemee folk and followers here of the Petes. They seemed to like it. Our own contact with the village rink only started three seasons ago. but we enjoyed the people we met. If not those ley hills on the way home. We recall genial Hec Fisher, the big timekeeper, the Parsons, the Weirs, the cops there, and many others - always had a wretched memory for names - on frosty nights in the jam-packed arena. The rink, a fine one for a place that size, was never meant to handle nearly 2,000 fans, but folks took the crowding in high good humor. Yeah, we enjoyed our associations there.

And Lindsay, Also

Same thing applies to the Lindsay arena where Legionnaire played "home" games last season. Officials there were always fair with the local club and fans made it their own. Many of the Legion games really packed the place, too, and the rink enjoyed a most successful season financially. There's artificial ice there now and Legion would certainly be back again this winter except that our own Civic Arena is ready. Toronto Meteors, instead, are using Lindsay for 'home" ice. At that, both the Petes and Legion have had games and practices in the Scugog centre for the past month or so. Legion players will remember Lindsay fondly.

While we haven't artificial ice in Peterborough and may not get it for another year or two-even at Civic Arena-it's nice to have a ome rink once more. Nice for the OHA-ers and their followers, and good for the youngsters coming up. It doesn't hurt our feelings, either, to be able to head uptown to work around 11 p.m. as soon as a game finishes. Instead of covering a "home" game at Omemee or Lindsay, waiting around half an hour or more as players changed clothes, and then getting into a bus for the trip home. With work waiting to be done on arrival in this borough. No, our feelings aren't bruised a bit.

Then There Were Three

Wurra, wurra - always something to silver the locks Word last evening was that Toronto Bells had dropped out. They were to have played at Richmond Hill in the OHA senior "B" group with Toronto Meteors, Legionnaires and the Petes. A meeting was planned to draw up a schedule but now Convener Frank Buckland and the other three clubs are on the prowl for a fourth team. Oshawa isn't i Belleville insists on playing in the Kingston setup, Meteors Petes and Legion don't want a three-team group, so what's to do? Haven't heard anything further at this writing, but it looks at the moment like quite a headache with the season's opening jus around the corner, what? * * * * *

Trojan Club bantam puck prospects are asked to meet at seven omorrow e'en at 578 Fagan Ave.—a street north of Romaine east off-Monaghan Road. Peewee Trojan ballsters are requested to turn in their ball uniforms at the same address. Frank Lundy informs us that things are coming along okay in this club with prospects bright for a big hockey ceason once more. Trojans will have two or three teams in the Peterborough Minor Hockey Association, which is affiliated with the OMHA, as well as running their own minor loop down in the south-west area. The PMHA schedules will likely be lined up shortly now.

Getting The Heave-Ho

And from Herb Martin comes word—whether serious or not we won't go on oath—that some of the curlers here favor the subbing system as in hockey, etc. If a skip sees a member of his rink, say the lead, not up to snuff some night, he waves him off and gets a substitute from No. 8—the standing gallery. By the same token, a slipping skip might be ousted for the evening if others on his rink gang up on him. The thought is intriguing and would keep the curlers on their toes. Including his nibs in charge. Imagine his red face as he shuffles "the last mile" from the ice to the midst of No. 8 and its kibitzers as a sub gaily takes his place!

Mack Hints '49 Pennant Year

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22 (AP) —Connie Mack hinted today on the eve of his 86th birthday that 1949 might be the year for "one more pennant."

Smiling a bit mischievously, the man who helped form the American Baseball League and guide it through 48 seasons admitted that he has high hopes his Philadelphia Athletics can land the loop championship next season for the first time

The remarkable old gentleman whose Cinderella club hovered near the league lead until the last month of the '48 campaign, said cautiously his team should be "a little better."

Mack doesn't plan any formal observation of his birthday to morrow. As a matter of fact, he said, he celebrated his birthday last October. He'll chat with reporters and pose for photographers at a press conference tomorrow morning at which time a huge birthday cake will be cut. He'll appear later on a television show.

she has been voted Canada's outstanding female athlete of 1948, the third time in as many years.

Sports editors in the annual Dominion-wide year-end poll conducted by the Canadian Press took one look at her recordbreaking performances and decided she belonged to the No. 1 stot. The award makes her the first triple winner since the poll was inaugurated by years ago.

Annonucement of the award coincided with the 20-year-old ice ballerina's professional debut in an ice extravaganza at New York's Roxy Theatre.

Asked to name the three individual performers among women in order of preference, 26 of 27 participating editors gave her a first, and many did not bother to record second and third choices. Christmas means crowds.
Crowds fostling their good-natured way through noisy, busy stores. Streams of humanity funnelling in and out of the doors into store aisles filled with more of the same; loaded with parcels; fumbling with complicated and lengthy lists of gifts; rummaging thoroughly and thoughtfully over counters piled high with a bewildering assortment of goods.

For those with the eyes to see it, half the fun of Christmas shopping is watching the others go about this perplexing business of selecting gifts for relatives and friends. And the others undoubtedly get as much fun watching the observer.

After some study, it is possible to classify the various types of Christmas shoppers.

ago were frozen when the outflow of dollars became too swift for Canada's economy to absorb and
Canada was forced into an austerity program of her own at the end of 1947.

The balance remaining at that time was $240,000,000. There was never any suggestion that the credit would be cancelled, and it has been gerally known that further withdrawals might be authorized shortly. Withdrawals in 1947 were at a much higher rate than anticipated when the grant was authorized.

It was no surprise, therefore, that when the United Kingdom's four-year economy plan was announced in London Monday it took into account further withdrawals from the Canadian credit without mentioning any amount.

Santa, Puffing Ligar, Leaves Police Station Brings Thrill To Young ster Passing By

The door of the police station on Water St. opened with a wide flourish Monday night, and out stepped Santa Claus. For a moment he was flood-lighted from within as he turned slightly and closed the door. Then, with a big puff of his cigar, he strode across the side-walk toward his white automobile. His coat was bright red and edged with white fur matching his hat that could be pulled down over his ears against cold weather.

Not so red as his coat were his cheeks, and not so white as his cheeks, and not so white as the fur trimming was his spread of whiskers. This was really Santa Claus and not some dressed-up man in a fantastic parade. The small boy of five was certain of that flashing fact of identity as he suddenly clasped his father's hand more tightly in his astonishment at the magic of the moment and the vision of Santa, met by chance. To him, as in the song from The Gingerbread Man, the jingly nursery rhyme was true.

Almost at the car, and just as it seemed that he was departing without a greeting to one of his subjects, Santa Claus noticed the boy and his father, then just behind him.

He stopped and turned back, and in the merriest of voices, he said: "Hello, my boy." It was such a possessive sal-utation and so glad and friend-ly, just like a grandfather.

Shyly, the little fellow replied: "Hello, Santa."

"And have you been a good boy this year?"

"Yes, Santa Claus," and there was a great depth of trust in the answer.

And, with a pat on the boy's head, Santa stepped into the white car, and drove off.

Of Distemper

Distemper epidemic among city dogs is reaching serious proportions according to figures being kept by G. A. Dunford, inspector of the Peterborough Humane So-ciety. He has not had time to compute December figures, nor would he make an estimate, but said that 48 dogs succumbed to it in November and a total of 140 died during December and Jan-uary last year. He destroyed nine hopeless cases on Monday.

This contagious disease effects This contagious disease effects dogs, ferrets, mink and occasionally foxes, according to veterinary Dr. W. R. Ford. Fifty per cent of all cases brought to him for treatment prove fatal and it is found that the stronger group that gets well is among older animals.

Inspector Dunford reports that only one case of poisoning was handled by him, a hound owned by Thomas Beatty, 723 George St. The body was found in the Nicholls Oval area.

__ansportation offices in Peterborough are ready—and in the midst of "the usual" Christmas rush, but they say that there are no indications here yet that the crowds will be outstandingly large. Signs to date show that the number of people who will be avelling some distance will be only a little larger than in the past.

This local outlook contrasts somewhat with reports from other sections of Ontario which say that new records will be set this year with the masses using all modes of transportation.

From this, it would appear that the residents of Peterborough and district believe in the old-fashioned idea of "Christmas—athome" more than is general in the province. U.S. Steel Mills Break Record For Production

By WILLIAM G. SMOCK.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 22 (AP) — United States steel mills have broken all peacetime production records this year. But their in-ability to meet a howling demand may confront them with a dreaded spectre - compulsory alloca-

President Truman hasn't said he will ask Congress for power to control the flow of steel from mills to customers, but produc-ers think 1949 will bring new attempts to earmark part of their output for uses which the government deems essential.

The past wear opened with a bang and mills kept up the pace, slowed only by two coal work stoppages. The 1948 production is estimated at 88,500,00 tons. That is only 1,000,000 tons less than the all-time high set in the war year of 1944, when jills pour-ed out steel regardless of needed repairs to furnaces and other

Shipments of finished steel probably will reach 65,700,000 tons, 88 per cent more than the 1939 output and an all-time peak. But the cry for more steel continued without let-up. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Strehl of St. Louis, Mo., moved up the date to make sure that the child would have her party. There was a Santa Claus, tree and presents. Behind them all stood unseen the spectre of death. Elizabeth Ann is a victim of cancer. Doctors say she has three weeks to live.

SUCCESSFUL GREATCOAT —A success of the winter coat season has been the beautifully handled greatcoat of magnifi-cent fabric. It is a model that is high style for town wear. Fashion Flashes

Can't go wrong in choosing a simply styled dress of fine lace. Shorter than ankle-length is the skirtalength of a handsome afterfive dress of fine black Chantilly-type lace, the skirt rounded softly at the hem, where it curves up 'a a slite. Matching sheer fills in the base of the very deep nec line which has a tapering flange of the lace. Bodice is girdled high and snug. Short sleeves.

Pretty pastel felts are back again, and made even prettic with flower trims. Apricot-colored felt makes a small hat worn back on the head, with a tiny cuff brim. It is trimmed at one side with a tall cluster of satin and velvet and roses in pale pink shading to shocking.

Faille is a favorite with teen agers. Dark navy faille is used for a youthful frock with short sleeves, high collar and a wide deep velveteen zigzagging across the front of the slightly full skirt.

Very much in the evening picture is the fine theatre suit. Heavy black satin is used for a handsome suit that has a deep rounded strapless bodice of ecru, hand-corded Alencon lace mounted on matching marquisette. Jac-ket is close-fitting; the skirt dip to touch the floor in back.

A bit of glitter marks the latest frocks. Black silk crepe is used for a handsome afternoon frock, good for an important luncheon or tea. It is simply made with a slight fishtail fullness towards the back. The snug bodice has a deep square neckline flanged with deep pink satin beautifully embroidered in seed pearls, crystal beads and sequins.

US Resolution Asks Immediate Halt To Fighting In East

Col. W. R. Hodgson of Australia told the U.N. Security Council the Dutch assault on the Indonesians was "the first clear-cut deliberate violation of the U. N charter by a member.

He called the Council's attention to Article 25 of the charter which says "members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council."

The Soviet Union also loosed a blistering attack on the Nether-lands and demanded immediate withdrawal of Dutch troops from Indonesian territory seized in the current conflict.

Soviet delegate Jakob A. Malik said all members of the counci should form a committee to en-force this withdrawal and added that he was introducing a resolu tion to this effect. A similar Rus-sian proposal in the summer of TORONTO, Dec. 23-(CP).-A 50-cent levy will be applied to all motor operator and chauf-feur licenses issued in Ontario next year.

This decision was reached on Wednesday by the Ontario Cabinet. The levy will bring in an estimated $575,000 next

The fund, established by legislation last spring, provides for payment of damages to an injured person when a claim whom the claim is made is cancelled until he has repaid the province and proved financial esponsibility.
